By FRANK DRAKE.

A "vacation"—from knowledge—has been forced upon more than 300,000 Georgia school children because of the failure of the legislature to provide sufficient funds to keep school doors open, Ralph L. Ramsey, secretary of the Georgia Education Association, asserted last night in announcing that 90 county school systems have either already closed up or plan to shut down by next Friday.

Ramsey yesterday afternoon sent telegrams to county superintendents and last night had received 103 replies. Superintendents of 90 school systems reported coffers are already drained and that their schools must cease to operate immediately.

Others reported that drawing on emergency funds would keep them open a few weeks longer.

The superintendent wired Ramsey their situation is desperate and that "we do not know what to do."

Superintendent C. B. Landrum, of Millen, Jenkins county, reported the Jenkins County High school with 60 children in the senior class.

MILTON, Fla., March 17.—(P) Six hours after two Montgomery, Ala., men were bound together and killed early today Sheriff John Harrell arrested a 20-year-old youth who he said confessed the kidnap-slaying.

Federal agents joined west Florida officers in questioning the young man, who gave his name as Harvey McGraw, of Pensacola.

Victims of the crime were Clifford T. Mann and Charles Wilkinson. They were abducted at Georgiana, Ala., early this morning when the slayer forced them to drive him away from a filling station he robbed.

Turpin Williams, a resident of this vicinity, found the bodies about 200 yards off the Milton-Brewton, Fla., highway. The men had been tied back to back with a rope. They were shot through the heads, the chest and the backs.

A taxicab driver's description led to the arrest of McGraw as an eastbound train paused at Chipley.

Sheriff Harrell said he boarded the train about 9:30 a. m. and saw in the day coach a man who answered the description furnished by the taxidriver, Dick Carpenter, who drove McGraw from Milton to Pensacola early today.

"I walked up to him and told him I was an officer," Sheriff Harrell continued. "He looked as if he wanted to resist."

"I told him right quick what had happened and I made him march out in front of me. He almost got me when he tried to pull a gun after I got inside the depot."

Sheriff Harrell said McGraw told him he shot the men because he wanted to rob them. He had about $50 in his pockets when arrested.

Department Stores
Show 20 Pct. Gain

Atlanta department store sales for the week ending March 11 showed a gain of 20 per cent over the same week a year ago, and 3 per cent over the preceding week, the Atlanta Federal Reserve Bank reported yesterday.

Sales in the sixth federal reserve district were up 14 per cent over last year, and 8 per cent over the previous week, the report showed.

Sales for the four weeks ending March 11 increased 15 per cent in Atlanta over the corresponding period of 1938 and 9 per cent in the reserve district.

Efforts To Strip

By The Associated Press.
Fresh threats of a rift between the house and senate loomed last night as the hour for sine die adjournment of the Georgia general assembly drew closer.

Prayed nerves loosed sharp debate in the house after a senate committee adversely reported a house-approved resolution extending the life of a special legislative economy committee. Across the corridor, Senator Everett Millican, of Atlanta hinted a floor attack today on house members who earlier had assailed a senate bill permitting leasing of air rights over Western & Atlantic Railway tracks in Atlanta.

Meanwhile, sharp criticism of Governor Rivers was heard in the house, and renewed debate arose over efforts to strip Labor Commissioner Ben T. Huie of his authority.

Strained relations between the house and senate recalled similar curt exchanges a week ago when some house members criticized reported plans to substitute a sales tax for a house-approved measure hiking the state levy on chain stores. The measure eventually was killed outright by the senate.

Observers saw the senate's action on the joint economy resolution as equivalent to killing the measure, since to be effective, it would have had to be read a second time yesterday and placed on final passage today. The house, however, sought to push its economy probe independently by unanimously approving a privileged resolution extending the life of its committee 90 days.

Debate included charges by Representative Lovett, of Laurens, economy advocate, that the senate is "not in favor of economy," and

Perhaps the best test, after all, of the popularity and real usefulness of a trade exposition is the reaction and comment of those who make up its exhibits. Judged by that gauge, The Constitution's "House of Progress Exposition," which closes tonight at the city auditorium, has been a success, alike from the exhibitors' viewpoint and patronage and popularity of the public.

With each night the crowds have increased, the visitors last night practically filling the big auditorium. Not only the music and the entertainment, but the displays at the various exhibits have attracted thousands, many scores of whom have become fine prospects for sales of the diversified lines

POWELL, Wyo., March 17.—(P) Ranch home of Durand's parents, five miles northeast of here.

With three shots, Durand last night killed Undersheriff D. M. Baker and Marshal Charles E. Lewis as they drove up to the ranch where he had forced Deputy Sheriff Noah Riley to drive him after escaping from the jail. He had beaten the deputy into submission as Riley brought supper to his cell last night. He had been imprisoned for killing a bull elk out of season.

With a rifle he had seized at the jail as he fled, Durand clubbed Riley into unconsciousness and slipped away from the ranch with provisions and two more guns. He held up a neighboring ranchman and obtained a fourth weapon and a quantity of ammunition.

Walter Bartlett, county legislator, said Durand, "built like a Tarzan with hair falling to his shoulders," possibly could live months in mountain hideouts without detection, subsisting on wild game.

Referring to Durand's known liking for raw meat, Bartlett pointed out he wouldn't have to build fires. He was chewing a slab of raw meat when arrested for poaching and told the officers he "didn't have time to cook it and it's good raw, anyway."

Germany Perils Peace of World, Acting Secretary
Welles Declares.

WASHINGTON, March 17. (AP)—In language seldom used in diplomacy, the State Department today denounced Adolf Hitler's coup in Czechoslovakia as wanton and lawless, while from Capitol Hill Senator Pittman, Democrat, Nevada, an administration leader, called on the United States to hurry preparations for "potential political and physical action" in its own defense.

With the approval of President Roosevelt, Sumner Welles, under-secretary of state, issued a statement declaring that "acts of wanton lawlessness and of arbitrary force are threatening world peace and the very structure of modern civilization."

He condemned "the acts which have resulted in the temporary extinguishment of the liberties of a free and independent people." The word "temporary" caught the attention of the capital. Unofficially, the word was said to mean that the United States government does not believe the Czech people can be kept indefinitely in the German Reich but that the day will come when they will seek to free themselves, possibly with outside assistance.

Welles spoke shortly after President Roosevelt, at a press conference, cited European events as showing the need for alterations in the American neutrality act. This recalled frequent indications that the administration desires greater freedom of action than is possible under the present law, which calls for embargoes on shipments of war materials to both sides of any foreign war.

Tonight Hans Thomsen, charge d'affaires of the German embassy, called on Welles and presented a formal communication from his foreign office notifying the United States that the Reich had absorbed Bohemia and Moravia.

The document consisted mostly of the legal proclamation, issued yesterday morning, whereby Hitler announced the end of the Czechoslovak republic.

It also said that Czechoslovak representatives abroad had been ordered to refrain from transacting any official business.

Meanwhile, the Treasury applied today to Czechoslovakian provinces seized by Germany the higher tariff duties already in effect on imports from the Nazi Reich, which long has been on this country's tariff black-list.

McCrary Found Guilty
In Reporter's Arrest

Lieutenant C. E. McCrary was found guilty last night of conduct unbecoming an officer by the police committee at a trial resulting from the arrest of the night of March 2 of an Atlanta newspaperman covering a fire.

Punishment was fixed at a reprimand by Chief Hornsby. Devereaux McClatchey, counsel for the reporter, William Terrell, stated all the punishment his client sought was the reprimand.

The vote followed a motion by Mayor Hartsfield, who said McCrary "had displayed bad judgment" in handling the reporter. Terrell was arrested after McCrary pushed him back of the fire lines and failed to honor the reporter's press card, signed by Chief Hornsby, when a three-alarm fire burned two buildings on Peters street two weeks ago.

Prime Minister Accuses Dictator of Breaking Promises and Accuses Berlin of Fomenting
Disorders as Excuse for Coup; Says De-mocracies Will Back Britain in Resistance.

The United States and Britain yesterday denounced Hitler's seizure of dismembered Czechoslovakia in unmistakably strong language.

Prime Minister Chamberlain branded the occupation as a deliberate betrayal of promises solemnly made at Munich and warned that Britain would take up arms if Hitler persisted in attempts to dominate the world by force.

As a direct slap at the coup, the British ambassador to Berlin was recalled for consultation and Chamberlain declared Hitler had "wantonly shattered" his hopes for appeasement.

The Fuehrer, meanwhile, rode in triumph toward Berlin to receive the acclaim of his people while his controlled press began snapping back at foreign criticism.

One German paper pointedly suggested that Britain stop meddling and "bring peace and contentment to the nationalities she has taken over."

Premier Daladier of France asked parliament for almost unlimited dictatorial powers to enable France to act as rapidly as the dictator-ruled nations.

The finance committee of the chamber voted approval, 26 to 17. Daladier is expected to receive the mandate Monday.

Nazi Press Strikes
Back at Criticism

BERLIN, March 17.—(P)—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler moved today through new land taken under the Nazi swastika toward a jubilant reception at his seat of empire, Berlin.

His controlled press at the same time began to strike back at criticism from abroad of Germany's absorption of Bohemia and Moravia and Slovakia.

Flags already were flying on the Goerlitzer railroad station in Berlin, searchlights were in place, a red carpet was being laid and preparations were in full swing for a long victory parade from the station to the magnificent new chancellery of the Fuehrer on Wilhelm platz.

Arrives in Vienna.

Hitler arrived late today in Vienna, capital of the nation which he gathered into the Nazi fold just a year ago last Monday.

Behind him was a spectacular greeting in Bruenn, capital of his new protectorate of Moravia and formerly a "German island" in a Slavic land.

Arriving from Prague by train, Hitler entered Bruenn in the forenoon through a forest of swastika flags.

Nazi soldiers and political units displayed their power for the rejoicing German residents—some 30 per cent of Bruenn's population—and for Slavs again under a German master.

German bombers droned overhead while tanks and armored cars rumbled over the cobblestoned streets, drowning out the cries of "Heil, Hitler!"

Hitler met municipal officials in the city hall but returned to the safekeeping of the city a 636-year-old compendium of fundamentals of German legislation offered to him as a gift.

Leaves Army Behind.

Also behind him in Bohemia and Moravia—the Czech parts of the vanished Czechoslovak republic—were his army's high command and an unknown number of troops to rule the protectorate.

Government spokesmen in Berlin said the army probably would be in charge for "several weeks" before the new Bohemian-Moravian government would be formed to represent the Slavs under the jurisdiction of an all-powerful protector to be named by Berlin.

Hitler was expected to return to Berlin tomorrow night.

He had left Prague last night by automobile but changed to a special train for the final phase of his trip to Bruenn. After several hours there, he continued by train to Vienna where he arrived at 5 p. m. (10 a. m. Atlanta time).

He established his headquarters at the Hotel Imperial on whose balcony he appeared to give the

Chamberlain
Denounces Hitler

BIRMINGHAM, England, March 17.—(P)—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain tonight bitterly lashed Chancellor Adolf Hitler as a breaker of promises and warned him that Britain would fight if he continued to seek domination of Europe by force.

He charged the Reichsfuehrer had taken "the law in his own hands" by occupation of Czechoslovakia, announced his own hopes of appeasement had been "wantonly shattered," and declared firmly:

"No greater mistake could be made than to suppose that because it believes war to be a cruel and senseless thing that this nation has so far lost its fibre that it will not take part, to the utmost of its powers, in resisting such a challenge (to dominate the world by force) if it ever were made."

A Fighting Speech.

Chamberlain spoke on the eve of his 70th birthday before a political rally of his fellow townsmen. In the speech, his first fighting speech against dictators since he became prime minister, he threw his appeasement policy overboard.

"I am convinced," he said, "that after Munich the great majority of the British people shared my hope and ardently desired that that policy should be carried further."

"But today I share their disappointment and their indignation that these hopes have been so wantonly shattered."

In another place he said: "There is nothing I would not sacrifice for peace, but there is one thing that I will except, and that is the liberties that we have enjoyed for hundreds of years and which we will never surrender."

Chamberlain was interrupted frequently by deafening cheers.

During the day his government had shown its disapproval of Germany's action by summoning home the ambassador to Berlin, Neville Henderson, "to report" on events in Czechoslovakia.

It was believed Sir Neville would be kept in England for some time as a protest against the German moves. Britain also was considering acting with France in a joint protest to Berlin.

In angry language such as a British prime minister has rarely ever used in condemning another nation, Chamberlain said Germany's invasion of Czechoslovakia was in "complete disregard of principles laid down by the German government itself."

He said it raised this question: "Is this the end of an old adventure or is it the beginning of a new?"

Responding to a vote of thanks at the end of his speech, the prime minister predicted that Germany

State Welfare Setup Change Drafted

Savings of $100,000 a Year Provided in Plan Sent to Washington for Federal Approval.

The federal government next week will be asked to approve a new plan of operation for the State Department of Public Welfare which will save the state upwards of $100,000 a year, Director Braswell Deen revealed yesterday after Chairman Arthur Lucas, of the welfare board, charged that the department is honeycombed with "political parasites."

The welfare director said that the Social Security Board requires a written plan of operation to be approved before it will send federal money into the state.

"Acting after the house economy committee had investigated the welfare department the board sought to cut its personnel expenses about $100,000 a year," Deen said. "This necessitated the rewriting of our written plan now on file in Washington. We have re-written the plan and have sent it to Washington for approval."

Deen revealed that he had been called to appear before the Social Security Board next Thursday and Friday and discuss the new plan.

"It is absolutely necessary that we cut our overhead expenses and I hope to be able to get the Social Security Board to agree with our welfare board," the director said. Deen was named by the board to work out details of the reduction, which was ordered by the board itself.

Before leaving the city for the day, Chairman Lucas declared in an interview that in addition to the persons placed on the welfare pay roll by political leaders there "is a strongly organized group of social workers" at work to keep trained welfare workers in the department.

"The Georgia Welfare Department is paying too many people too much money to do nothing," Chairman Lucas said.

Housekeepers Find Home Show Inspiration

Interested visitors at The Constitution's "House of Progress Exposition" Friday were Mrs. W. E. Ashley (left), of 1044 East Rock Springs road, N. E., and Mrs. T. L. Underwood, of Hawkinsville. Mrs. Ashley declared that it was one of the most interesting exhibitions she had ever attended. Mrs. Underwood, regent of Hawkinsville Chapter, D. A. R., attended the D. A. R. convention. "I was so glad I could come to Atlanta at a time this exposition was on," she said. "There is so much that is inspirational and instructive—so much to see and learn."

more pleased than B. M. Clay, of the Georgia Tent & Awning Company. "You can say to my friends," he said, "that if they miss this exposition they will miss a lot. I have taken part in many expositions, but this has been the best, and has given me the best results and has attracted more attention, thus creating more possible customers, than any show of this kind I have ever been in. People seem now more awning-minded than ever, and I have booked a number of nice orders, and I think I have many prospects that will mean orders later. I feel that The Constitution should be complimented on putting on a show of this kind—one that has for its purpose the stimulating of interest in home ownership and home beautification."

Roofing Interest. At the booth of the Atlanta Roofing & Supply Company, attendants report that much interest has been shown in their lines of roofing and home equipment. They are well pleased with results. Harry Satterwhite, advertising manager for Sterchi Bros. stores, said: "This has been the finest show of its kind ever presented to Atlantans. It has done us a world of good. We have taken several nice orders, and our Whitehall store has made a number of splendid sales as a result of our exhibit down here."

The Atlantic Steel Company reports that it has had no trouble to interest many in its Dixie steel fence, a product it is emphasizing at the show. "We have found a large number of interested homeowners who we have reason to believe will be good customers later," said a booth attaché. Two splendid stoker sales have been made at the booth of the Automatic Coal Burning Corporation, and many have been interested in their Iron Fireman stoker and Lennox stoker, so they report at the booth.

Murray Company also reports a number of prospects and several sales traceable to their showing at the exposition. Their Will-Burt stokers and Knox Hat-Saver winter air conditioners have been carefully inspected and approved by many, and a number of sales are expected as a result.

At the booths of the Anderson-McGriff Hardware & Supply Company, with its showing of a new fireplace unit, the Western Venetian Blind Company, Chamberlain Weatherstrip Company, White Roofing & Repair Company, Moncrief Furnace Company, and many others, reports are that they have been well pleased at the results of the show.

The exposition closes at 10:30 o'clock tonight.

NEW TRIAL GRANTED CONVICTED AUDITOR

A new trial was granted J. H. McGinty, former auditor of Douglas county, yesterday by the state court of appeals.

McGinty had been convicted of misappropriating funds and sentenced to 12 months on the chain gang, six months in jail and fined $1,000.

Seventy per cent of India's population is supported by agriculture.

This statement drew fire in the assembly.

Speaking on personal privilege, Representative W. O. Strickland, of Haralson, declared:

"It may be that the Governor's trip to California is responsible for a part of the failure to pay teachers."

"It may be that the Governor's many trips to Washington with other state employees to find out how to run the state government is responsible for a part of the failure to pay the teachers."

"It may be that the $300,000 more or less that the Governor diverted from the teachers' and pensioners' fund, and so forth, is responsible for a part of the failure to pay the teachers."

"It may be, Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the house, paying political debts by putting hundreds of persons who are not needed on the pay rolls in different departments of the state at salaries from $1,800 to $4,000 a year is responsible for a part of the failure to pay teacher salaries and properly support other departments of the state."

"It may be that paying Chip Robert $85,000 without authority of law may have had something to do with the failure to pay teachers of Georgia and properly supporting other departments of the state."

Ally of Talmadge. Friends of Labor Commissioner Huie, long ally of former Governor Eugene Talmadge, again beat down an attempt to strip Huie of most of his authority.

By a vote of 83 to 70 against, the house again failed to agree to senate amendments to a labor bill which would have removed the unemployment compensation division and the Georgia Employment Service from Huie's jurisdiction.

Although the ayes exceeded the nays by 13, they still lacked 20 of the constitutional majority required to agree to the senate amendments.

Huie, ill in bed, last night issued a statement of thanks to his friends in the house through Zach Cravey, former game and fish commissioner. Cravey said Huie wished to thank all those who voted against the senate amendment and to promise he would administer the labor department fairly and

Follows Ancestor To Legislative Halls

A direct descendant of one of the members of the first Georgia legislature is serving in the present general assembly. He is Dr. C. A. Holtzendorf, of Fitzgerald, representative of Ben Hill county.

This dentist's ancestors landed on Yamawatch bluff when Georgia was overrun with trees and Indians and before it became loaded with cotton and lint.

The first of the line in the land of the free was William Holtzendorf, who was named a member of the executive council when Georgia's first legislature was assembled in Savannah on May 8, 1777.

He served with such men as William Few and Noble Jones when John Adams Treutlen was named Governor.

Dr. Holtzendorf explained that only the last couple of generations of the family have spelled their names with a "t" and an extra "f."

"So far as I know, I am the first Holtzendorf to serve in the legislature since William Holtzendorf," the doctor said.

off-the-floor comment by Representative Connell, of Lowndes, a member of the investigating committee, that the probe "should be made by members of the legislature and not people from the outside who can be hand-picked by the Governor or anyone else."

Authority Questioned. Vice-Chairman James V. Carmichael, of the house economy committee, joined with Speaker Roy W. Harris in questioning whether the house had authority to continue the economy committee independently and asked whether the resolution would "mean anything."

"Whether it means anything or not," retorted Representative Lovett, of Laurens, "it will show that the senate is not in favor of economy and that all this has been pre-determined by them not to do anything in the way of economy that the house sees fit to pass."

Both sides clearly are on minor legislation mostly local bills affecting small counties or communities, clearing calendars in preparation for automatic adjournment this midnight.

Mingled with the last-minute work, however, was talk of a special session, regarded as virtually certain as a result of house rejection of tax increases and failure to enact a new appropriations measure.

Confronted with a deficit he had estimated previously at $8,500,000 annually, Governor Rivers said he would result in widespread closing of schools and curtailment of welfare activities.

NEW LIBEL LAW SENT TO GOVERNOR

Eliminates Punitive Damages in Cases Involving 'Honest Mistakes.'

By The Associated Press. The Georgia general assembly yesterday amended the state's libel law to eliminate punitive damages against newspapers in cases involving "honest mistakes."

The measure goes to the Governor for signature. Sponsored in the house by Representative Jack Williams, of Waycross, publisher of the Waycross Journal-Herald, it marks the end of several years of effort by Williams to revise the libel law.

Representatives John W. Bennett Jr., of Ware; Frank Gross, of Stephens, the house floor leader; Alex A. Marshall, of Macon, and DeLacey Allen, of Dougherty, aided by members of the Fulton and DeKalb delegations, joined in strongly supporting the bill.

Representative Williams previously had offered the bill while serving in the state senate. It provides:

"Section 1. Before any civil action shall be brought because of any publication of a libel in any newspaper, magazine or periodical, the plaintiff shall, within the period of the statute of limitations for such actions and at least five days before instituting such action, give notice in writing to the defendant specifying the article and the statements therein which he claims to be false and defamatory and further stating in said notice what the complaining party claims to be the true state of facts."

"Section 2. If it appears upon the trial of any case in which such notice has been given that the article published was true or that the same was privileged, the same shall be governed by all the laws of Georgia now in force and in reference to such actions, and the truth shall be a complete defense, and the privileged communication, if there be no malice, as is now provided, shall be a complete defense, but in all other cases if it appears upon the trial that said article was published in good faith; that its publication was due to an honest mistake of the facts; that there was reasonable ground for believing that the statements in said article were true, and that within 10 days after the service of said notice a full and fair correction or retraction was published in the same editions or corresponding issues of the newspaper, magazine or periodical in which said article appeared, and in as conspicuous a place and type as was said original article, then the plaintiff in such case shall recover only such special or actual damages as the plaintiff shows he has sustained."

"Section 4. All laws and parts of laws in conflict with this act or any part thereof are hereby repealed."

PEANUT ACREAGE TO BE INCREASED

Gain of 8 Per Cent Predicted in Georgia.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—(AP) The Federal Crop Reporting Board predicted today an increase of 6.2 per cent in acreage planted in peanuts this year over the record acreage seeded last year.

Reports from growers indicated 2,319,000 acres would be planted this year.

In the Virginia-Carolina area, the prospective increase was reported to be 1.2 per cent; in the southeastern area, 6.3 per cent, and in the southwestern area, 10.6 per cent.

The prospective plantings, by major producing states and the percentage of increase over last year, included:

Georgia, 746,000 acres, 8 per cent; Alabama, 426,000 acres, 4 per cent; Texas, 385,000 acres, 10 per cent; North Carolina, 250,000 acres, no change; Virginia, 168,000 acres, 3 per cent.

Swallows Sword in Court And Wins His Freedom

CHICAGO, March 17.—(AP)—All Clarence Curley had to do to win his case in court today was to swallow three swords.

He was carrying them yesterday when he was taken into custody on State street. He explained he was a professional sword swallower. The skeptical officers charged him with disorderly conduct pending proof of his claims.

"If you can show me that you can swallow these swords," said Judge Leon Edelman, "I'll let you go."

Curley put on his act and walked out.

Rubber came to the attention of Europeans through American Indians playing with balls of dried, crude rubber.

Capital Hotel Strike Threatens Success of Georgia Society Dance

State Congressional Delegation Split Over Passing Through Ticket Lines Around Hostilities; Cox To Attend in 'Defiance.'

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS. Constitution Staff Correspondent. WASHINGTON, March 17.—It looked today as though the Georgia State Society would hold its dance and reception here tomorrow night without benefit of congressional patronage.

The party which is being given in honor of some 30 members of the Georgia State College women's choir and the Georgia Military College, will be held at the Raleigh hotel here, which is one of the leading Washington hostilities now being picketed day and night by waitresses, elevator operators and other restaurant employees.

The state's congressional delegation was especially invited to attend by President Harry L. Brown, assistant secretary of agriculture, who is a Georgian himself.

Arrangements for the party were completed before the hotel strike was called about a week ago and now that the strike still continues with no immediate prospects of settlement, the congressional members with the exception of one or two have indicated they cannot afford to run the picket line.

Out of the City. President Brown, who personally invited the Georgia congressional delegation to the party, now finds it convenient to be out of the city tomorrow before leaving he advised many of the members he would not attend the party and assured the members they were free to disregard the invitation, if they so wished.

Representative Eugene E. Cox, of Camilla, was the only member reached today who said he positively would attend.

"I don't usually go to these affairs," he said, "but I am going tomorrow night just to show my independence."

Judge Cox lives at the Wardman Park hotel, in suburban Washington, where pickets have been patrolling the entrance since the hotel strike was called. He will be handled exactly as they have been in the past.

"Under a new bill passed through the recent legislature, which was supported by the highway board, we have now allocated all of the tag money to post and rural road work, which will amount to approximately $1,600,000. Last year the post and rural road division only received $234,000 allocated revenue. The board increased this revenue out of regular funds to nearly $1,000,000. The prospects for expanding and developing the post and rural road work, which is so badly needed in this state, is very bright indeed, with the increased financial support by having allocated to it all of the tag money and the provision for economical administration of these funds."

Explaining the measure, Chairman Miller yesterday made the following statement:

"The law setting up the post and rural road work in the state in 1937 provided that the personnel to carry on this work should be a separate employment and the work carried on separately from the regular work of the department. The bill provided that all of the activities of the post and rural road work be under the highway board as does the new bill. The new bill simply gives the highway department authority to carry on the post and rural road work with its regular personnel as the department supervises and carries on any other work. The new bill provides that the funds be allocated to the regular work of the department on a basis of county road mileage in the exact manner as the bill of 1937.

"There will be one man, an assistant state engineer, in charge of the post and rural road work, just as there is one man, an assistant state engineer, in charge of the state roads, all of which will be under the general direction of the State Highway engineer; whereas the 1937 bill provided that the engineer in charge of post and rural road work was directly under the highway board. Through this assistant state engineer in charge of post and rural road work the funds will be set up under the advice and direction of the county commissioners of the different counties as has been the policy heretofore. These roads being county roads, the highway board adopted a policy at the beginning of this work in 1937, of allowing the county commissioners to designate the road of first importance in their judgment for improvement.

Does Not Change Work. "The amendment of the 1937 post roads law does not in any manner change the work of the post and rural roads of your State Highway Department, other than providing for elimination of duplication of personnel, and this does provide for a saving of several hundred thousand dollars of the funds programmed for 1939 and 1940. These several hundred thousand dollars saved by this elimination, of course, will be spent in improving and extending our post and rural road work. Any funds available for post and rural road work from any federal agency, such as WPA participation, Bureau of Public Road funds, or any other federal funds

AIRRIGHTS BODY VOTED BY HOUSE

Seven-Man Commission To Be Given Power To Extend Hotel Lease.

A bill creating an air rights commission to aid in developing business over the downtown W. & A. railroad tracks and to open the way for important improvements to the Henry Grady hotel was adopted by the house, 111 to 16, last night.

Senator G. Everett Millican, of Atlanta, introduced the measure, which was passed by the senate. The bill, which now goes to the Governor, names the seven-man commission to be headed by Charles Reid, chief justice of the supreme court.

The body will have the power to extend the lease of the state-owned lot on which the Henry Grady hotel stands as well as to work with the railroad in promoting erection of structures over the railroad tracks. Millican said he was informed that the hotel management plans improvements costing thousands of dollars if the lease can be extended 20 years.

Representatives Edwards, of Lowndes, and Wohlwendler, of Muscogee, opposed the measure.

The house also adopted the senate amendment that the commission allow judges to place witnesses in jail for 20 days for failing to testify in certain trials. Senator Millican introduced this bill as an aid to stamping out the lottery operators, he said.

Dry Legislator Is 'Let Down' on His Repeal Bill

As the general assembly prepared today to adjourn sine die, big Tom Cook, representative of Chattooga county, was a sad man. The legislature had failed to carry out his campaign platform.

Cook comes from the same county which last time sent Ross Thomas, of Trion, to the house. Thomas, representing a proverbially dry county, introduced the local referendum liquor bill which brought legal whiskey back to Georgia. Chattooga is still dry but Thomas is not still its representative.

His successor introduced, with Representative Randall Evans, of McDuffie, a bill to repeal the handiwork of his predecessor. But it died in committee and the state law remains in effect. Tonight Tom Cook goes home to tell the folks he did his part. The legislature just didn't co-operate.

ATLANTA, GA., MARCH 18, 1939.

NOT THE DEMOCRATIC WAY

There is something not in accord with the democratic way of doing things in the methods of opponents to the "One Government" plan for Atlanta and Fulton county. This criticism is not leveled at opposition to the plan itself, but at the subterfuges which have been resorted to in preventing the citizens from expressing their views on the issue.

Refusal by the general assembly to approve a bill which provided nothing more than a means by which the people could have been allowed an advisory vote on future legislation necessary to put the plan in effect, was founded entirely upon opposition by representatives from DeKalb county. Which, analyzed to its base, means that the approximately 25,000 citizens of Atlanta who reside in DeKalb county have been enabled to thwart even an expression of the will of the 400,000 who reside in Atlanta and in Fulton county.

According to Chairman Eugene Harrington, of the Citizens' One Government League, the DeKalb delegation in the assembly had informed the league there would be no opposition to the bill provided it had the approval of the DeKalb county commissioner and ordinary. This approval was secured in the form of written endorsement upon a copy of the bill.

Despite this, a public hearing was called by a house committee for 1 o'clock in the afternoon, of which the league was not notified until 12:30 o'clock, a bare half hour ahead of time. Five minutes only was allotted to each side. Chairman Harrington declares that the spokesman for the DeKalb delegation made several erroneous statements in his speech of opposition to the measure, but that no opportunity was granted to refute these statements.

Irrespective of the merits or demerits of the one government proposal, there has been a suspicious unwillingness to allow the voters themselves to express their views, ever since the issue first became active.

Atlanta's city council attempted to bury the Reed report for all time through the parliamentary maneuver of "tabling" it indefinitely. This tactic was thwarted only by the alertness of that large group of civic-minded citizens interested in the report and its recommendations.

Now another attempt to make possible a referendum vote, by the people concerned, has been blocked. It is evident that proponents of local governmental reform can not hope to succeed except by a long and persistent fight, not only for their cause itself, but even for the fundamental right to test the issue in the way provided under democracy.

It has frequently been said that any program designed to bring about greater efficiency and less cost to the taxpayers in governmental administration is certain to be opposed by professional politicians and officeholders. It is the presumption that these people, backed by their groups of organized voters, always fear that efficiency and economy in government means a reduction in jobs and an increase in duties for them. This is probably true. But that fact does not warrant continuance of sinecures and over-burdening of the public pay rolls with employees who could profitably be dispensed with.

Whether this situation is true, to any great extent, in Atlanta and Fulton county, is yet to be determined. Much data may be secured on the point by a careful reading of the Reed report, which city council tried, even though clumsily, to bury.

But, so long as the right of the people to vote on any issue is blocked by parliamentary subterfuges, the officeholders and perennial politicians, both of city and county, lay themselves open to the charge of ruthless overriding of the rights of the citizens in order to perpetuate themselves in well-paid jobs.

A cocktail bar is to be included in the replica of Independence Hall at the New York fair, and patriots are aghast. Now to write a swing number for the Liberty Bell.

Only the cover of the Congressional Record is changed. Peering into the later pages one has that strange feeling of having been here before.

Sleuths on the track of a long-wanted outlaw nabbed him when he stepped from a Pennsylvania barber shop, as a fellow can't stay forever under a hot towel.

Of course there are better jokes in Germany than the sorry specimens bought by Goebbels. For the best ones you could get shot.

THE GREATER WISDOM?

News stories of the Czech collapse have laid great stress upon the fact that Hitler has done what Bismarck feared to do. The unmistakable, though probably unintentional, implication is that Hitler is stronger and wiser than the Iron Chancellor who succeeded in welding together the German peoples.

A quick glance through the history books will immediately raise the question of relative wisdom. It is, of course, too early to tell whether Hitler will succeed where Bismarck shied away but, if past performance is any test, the Prussian general has all the odds in his favor.

Bohemia lost its independence in the Thirty Years war of the 17th century. It remained lost until the World War, but never in those intervening years was that servitude accepted. The defection of the Czech people during the great war played no small part in the defeat of the Central Powers. The methodical, solid artisans awaited their opportunity and, with the Slovaks, serfs for generations yet retaining their national unity under generations of Hapsburg rule, struck at the golden moment.

That is the past. For the 20 years intervening, the Czechs and the Slovaks have known liberty. They were ready and willing to fight for that liberty to the last man only six months ago. It is absurd to think that they have lost that spirit in the intervening months. The greeting of Prull for the German conquerors Wednesday was futile but significant. Hitler has acquired a population that will be nothing but a liability in the event of war despite the tremendous resources he has gained for the war machine. Even in surrender the Czech army was perfect in its discipline, a surprising occurrence. The atmosphere seemed to be calm yielding under the necessities of the minute. Tomorrow is another day for these people. They have accepted their Calvary in stoic defiance. Their tomorrow will tell a different tale.

The stunned surprise of Mr. Chamberlain in London may indeed be the first clue to the misstep made by the Nazi leader. Even he must have felt a twinge of regret that appeasement has at last become impossible. There was nothing England or France could do in the crisis. If the Bastion of the Sudetenland had stood last fall, there would have been a chance. Yesterday there was nothing. Only "I bitterly regret." For tomorrow, there are the pages of past history and the wisdom of Bismarck. He at least knew his limitations.

PART OF A CITY'S HISTORY.

There are certain institutions, of many types, which for so many years have interwoven their own story with that of the locality they make their own, that it becomes impossible for the historian of their city to present an adequate picture without them.

Atlanta, perhaps, possesses more than the usual share of cultural, historic and commercial landmarks. In the latter category are many business enterprises, founded in the early days of the city which have not only grown with the city's progress, but have themselves contributed much to Atlanta development.

Such an institution is the George Muse Clothing Company, which this week has celebrated its 60th anniversary as an Atlanta business. No one who has known Atlanta in any degree, cursory or complete, during those six decades, but is familiar with Muse's. It is, today, of course a far different establishment than at its founding, just as the Atlanta of 1939 is a far different city than the town of horse cars and oil lamps that stood here in 1879.

However, intrinsically, Muse's is Atlanta to the heart. It's development has paralleled that of the city and the modern institution it has become is but in step with the modern city it now serves. Typical of the place is the fact that six of the men who now control the destinies of the business have been with it for more than twenty years. The founder, George Muse, is dead, but the "boys" he trained have well carried on the tradition he built. J. Harry Alexander, now president, has been with the company for 44 years. Three vice presidents, Ed S. Thompson, Oby T. Brewer and Nesbit Tilly have been there for 42, 29 and 25 years respectively. John J. Vogel counts his service as 28 years, while A. Leon Stipe has worked alongside the others for 22 years. A total of 190 years of service for six men, not alone to their company, but to the city they have watched grow and to which they have contributed no small share.

There is an accolade of appreciation for any business establishment that can win a sixty-year success. It is accorded, today, in fullest measure, to Muse's by every citizen of Atlanta.

Editorial of the Day

DISCOURAGING FOR DICTATORS

(From The Memphis Commercial Appeal.)

The attitude of the Catholic Church as represented by developments at the Vatican since the death of Pope Pius XI has been anything but encouraging to dictators and the force philosophies. When aged Pius XI died after a long and not uneventful battle in behalf of sane liberalism, the Fascist powers immediately began to hint to the College of Cardinals that the type of successor who would be most agreeable to them would be one purely spiritual.

The College of Cardinals replied by electing Eugenio Pacelli, one of the most capable and shrewd diplomats ever developed by the Vatican. It is not secret that his election has been a great disappointment to the motivating forces of the Rome-Berlin axis. Now to complete the discomfort of the force powers, Pope Pius XII has appointed the Vatican's No. 2 diplomat to be secretary of state. In Cardinal Maglione, the Vatican has a trained statesman with very definite democratic leanings. One time Papal Nuncio to France, and holder of the Grand Cross of the French Legion of Honor, Cardinal Maglione believes in the same liberal philosophies of government as does his pontiff.

With two known democrats directing the political policies of the Vatican, the foreign offices of the Fascist states are up against a combination not likely to be easily influenced or prevailed upon. From it one can expect, too, a brand of Vatican City diplomacy which will be marked by extraordinary finesse. In short, there is good reason to believe that a very soft Vatican glove will cover a hand of very finely tempered steel. Cardinal Maglione's appointment, in every respect, will be welcomed by the democracies.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

GARNER AS CANDIDATE WASHINGTON, March 17.—The remark about death and taxes being the two inevitable incidents of human life ought to be amended to include politics. While chaos grimes the world, the lines for 1940 are being busily laid. The latest development is John Nance Garner's pretty definite emergence as a presidential candidate.

Hitherto the wisecracks, including the wisest of all, Postmaster General James A. Farley, have insisted that the canny old Vice President only wanted a voice in choosing his party's nominee. They have said he would be content with a king-maker's role. But now, if normal political standards apply to his behavior, he hopes to be king himself. Or at least that's the interpretation placed by his cronies on four interesting events of the last few days.

The events were pilgrimages to "the bureau of education," the Garner hideaway in the capitol, by four important northern politicians. Each of the politicians was convinced that the President would not seek a third term. Each professed himself anxious to go on a Garner highway, to earn a big haul. Garner gave the same answer. He would not put himself in the position of "asking" any man to seek delegates for him. But, if his friends wished to go out and get them, "he couldn't interfere."

IMPOUNDERABLES From a noble "no" to blatant delegate-hunting, there are infinite shadings in the answer to the four northern politicians was not the kind of answer which is made by a man who really doesn't want the presidency. In fact, they intimate that, in the cozy privacy of the Garner "bureau of education," the Garner hat has been softly tossed into the ring.

If the Garner cronies are correct, at least one imponderable has been removed from the 1940 situation. Of the scores of others remaining, the most important, of course, is the question of the President and of Jim Farley. There's no doubt that the President still wants a New Dealer as his successor. There's also no doubt, among the political experts at least, that the President can't get a New Dealer, be he Harry Hopkins, Bob Jackson or whoever else. As to whether the President can be nominated to succeed himself, opinion is divided. Garner and other southern conservatives make no secret of their belief that a third term effort can be prevented. There is even talk of certain southern delegations walking out of the convention if such an effort is made.

On the other hand, less fiery spirits point out that the 1940 convention will be composed of Democratic officeholders, all desperate to save their jobs, and sure their candidate cannot win if the President doesn't help. With that leverage and with Jim Farley's help, the President ought to be able to be named.

As for Jim Farley, he still has the largest influence with the party organizations. He has stated his willingness to support the President for a third term, but has also intimated pretty clearly that he did not expect to have to. He and Garner are warm friends, but although they are in constant touch and had a very long talk on the day of the joint session commemorating the first congress, they are understood to be acting independently. There is much talk that Farley is himself a candidate, and the polls and the party organizations' devotion to him both suggest that he has a chance.

PESSIMISMS Meanwhile, pessimism is spreading, like a black plague, both among conservative Democrats and New Dealers. In his Kansas speech, the New Deal leader, Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson, virtually said that he anticipated Republican victory in 1940—his theme being that the Republicans would surely win unless the Democrats achieved an impossible victory. He was reliably said to express the President's views. Jim Farley's belief that the next election is not known, but the conservative Democrats around Garner are almost as glum as the New Dealers around the President.

Garner himself would have obvious difficulties in a campaign, the main ones being his age, and the dislike of the Irish, the labor groups, some segments of the foreign-born vote and the negroes. But the truth is that a poll of 10 representative Democratic senators showed only two willing to predict that their party could find a winning candidate, whether Garner, Roosevelt, Farley or the Archangel Gabriel.

Here comes the campfire cook!

Greatest Piles Of Mail.

A modern newspaper, you know, is one of the most diversely specialized organizations. The paper that brings to the reader's eye a morning is the result of a lot of work by a myriad of people who each do a certain little item in the necessary sum of it all. One man asks questions in the right place and gets information, or news. He brings this to another man who writes it. A third man reads and corrects the copy. Another specialist concocts the headline. Another transmits the copy from its department of origin to the mechanical divisions. Then it passes through a host of hands, each doing a little thing, technical operation, or duty, until at last, with a proper modicum of luck, it finds its place in a certain column of a certain page, waiting for you to read.

And each individual who has touched that item with his hand has his own part to play. He knows how to make it as near perfect as possible. In fact, in preparation, in typography and in total effect.

But the thought by which this column got under way, today, was the wonder as to which of the almost innumerable departments of the paper averages, day in and day out, the greatest amount of mail, communications from readers.

And I'm entering in the contest that department presided over by a lady with the pseudonym of Sally Saver. The department which, each Friday morning, discusses, foods and their preparation, which gives to you appetizing recipes for new and tantalizing dishes and which compiles menus that should be, at least, an epicure's delight.

The Lady

Is Important.

Sally Saver is important, and rightfully so. For what is more vital in the day's routine, to any man or woman, than the food they eat?

Saw a slogan, the other day, outside a store that purveys foods. It read: "What you eat today, walks and talks tomorrow." Which, in the final analysis, is true enough, in the sense of deep consideration.

Hence the importance of Sally Saver.

Hence, likewise, the universal interest in her column and the stacks of mail that are addressed to her desk each day.

Man has always been intensely interested in all writings, all conversation, about foods. Show me a novelist who can describe a meal in such words and phrases that readers become hungry for the dish described, and I'll show you a novelist that can't be kept out of the best-seller class.

It has been argued, and with strong good sense behind it, that a large proportion of the eternal popularity of Charles Dickens is due to his marvelous ability to eulogize the charms of a well-roasted cut of beef or the ability to wax poetic over the deliciousity of a plum pudding.

Remember "Pickwick Papers."

Long May She Flourish.

So, long may Sally Saver prosper among us, say I.

She has fully earned her salary, no matter how great it may be, if she brings to the tables of Atlanta, to the readers of The Constitution, one new dish a month. One dish that shall reawaken dormant gastric juices, that shall rekindle the spark of anticipation in the sated eye and stir again the appetites of erstwhile gourmands who have become blasé on too steady a diet of half-fried chicken and the pies that mother, alas, used to make.

The road to a man's heart is through his stomach, they say. Certainly, the open sesame to reader interest is through their culinary curiosity, which is perfectly all right by me.

Sally, how about a good, rousing, juicy recipe on the roast beef of old England, with slices of Yorkshire pudding on the side, well soaked in rich red gravy?

We're for you, Sally gal.

CHRISTIAN LIVING.

Sunday's lesson, I Peter 3:8-18, is an exhortation to Christian living. One will need to read the entire epistle to have the proper background for the brief passage selected for the lesson. Clearly, there can be no Christian living until one has received the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth—has first been enthroned in the believer's heart. One need not hope to "be holy in all manner of conversation" till first he has yielded his will to Him who is the Life, the Truth, the Way.

The lesson opens with this striking admonition, "Finally, be ye all of one mind, having compassion one of another, love as brethren, be merciful, be courteous." This one sentence encompasses Christ's living. Imagine a moment what the world would be if every person in every nation and race sincerely sought to enshrine Christ as Lord in his or her life. Wars would cease, poverty would be no more, unemployment would end, crime would cease.

It is too much to expect? Not if we believe in Christ—not if we really desire all men to believe in Christ—not if we are willing to do the will of God.

Note what would happen. First there would be a brotherhood of believers—harmonious, sympathetic, kind, considerate, beneficent brotherhood. Second, the Bible would have its rightful place in our lives, defining our desires, revealing gladsome obedience, and fixing for us the sense of responsibility. Third, we would possess and exhibit true courage—courage to be zealous, courage to suffer, courage to stand up for Jesus.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Services NEW YORK, March 17.—Recent advice inform your correspondent—some of them with more than a trace of anger—that General Phil Sheridan was an Irishman and that his services to this country, therefore, must be regarded as a contribution by the Emerald Isle. General Lee Bullard and General Hugh Drum are similarly claimed in the upper register of a long list of distinguished individuals which includes John L. Sullivan, Gene Tunney, James J. Corbett and Gabby Hartnett. The names and careers of the persons cited sum up to a very impressive total in the life of this country, and their subtraction from the score of American achievement and honor would leave the United States much the poorer and Ireland much the gainer.

Recorded information has it, however, that General Sheridan was born in Albany, N. Y., and that Generals Bullard and Drum are natives, General Drum being, indeed, the son of an American officer who was killed in action in the American war against Spain. Sullivan, Tunney, Corbett and Hartnett also were born and raised in this land, and the feats for which they were famous, barring a few strictly social victories by Mr. Sullivan in London, were performed in the nation of their birth and allegiance.

Delicate The claim advanced by Irish correspondents, also by an Irish newspaper published in New York, is one of great delicacy, as your correspondent learned last year when he awarded to Italy full credit for the lives and works of a long roll of famous, if not exactly honored, individuals who rose to eminence in the criminal branch of American endeavor.

The Italian Duce's press at the time was berating the United States as a gangster nation, but, rather oddly when the scores of these missionaries were credited to Italy—a generous gesture, one would have thought—there was much indignation against the aspersions on Italian blood and culture. They were, it appeared, Americans and victims of the corrupt environment of a barbarian country, including even those who joined us in full maturity and hewed, in more than a figurative sense, a place in American hearts.

Others in So be it, then, but if it be so the list of noted Irish among us must be opened to others who are plainly eligible on the same ground, starting at random with the late Boss Dick Croker, of New York. Mr. Croker's career was, in its peculiar way, highly successful, but his contribution to the political morals and public welfare of the United States is one which Ireland may not be alert to claim.

Frank Hague, the mayor of Jersey City, a millionaire by dint of saving on a modest salary, and his precocious son, lately appointed to the highest court in New Jersey, though not long out of law school, are two more who belong to Erin's honor roll by this argument.

To Ireland almost must go credit for the contributions to good government and public morals which have honored the names of the O'Connell brothers, of Albany, and to Ireland also such glory as she may find in the lives and works of James C. Foley, of Boston; Maurice E. Connolly, of Queens; Big Tim Sullivan, commander of Tommaso Pendergast, of Kansas City; Tim Box Tom Farley, Charles F. Murphy, James J. Walker, Jimmy Hines, John McCooey and those twin guardians of decency and civic purity in the old first ward of Chicago, Hinky-Dink Kenna and Bathhouse John Coughlin—the latter no known kin, however, to still another distinguished contributor to the peace and democracy of this nation, the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, of Detroit.

Don't Break All these and many others, however, be Ireland by the same rule of contention that claims General Sheridan, born in Albany, and other honored natives of the U. S. A. and anyone who claims individuals for Ireland has no right to break the package and choose only a select few.

Constitution Quiz

Can you answer seven of these test questions? Turn to next ad page for the answers.

1. State the official name for Russia.
2. What proportion of United States senators are elected biennially?
3. Can the president order the coinage of United States money?
4. Name the capital of the Madeira Islands.
5. Has an absolute vacuum ever been attained?
6. What is the correct pronunciation of the word laboratory?
7. Name the only city in the United States where two presidents of the United States have been born.
8. On what island in the Pacific did the mutineers of the ship Bounty settle with their Tahitian wives?
9. What is static electricity?
10. Where are the Dry Tortugas islands?

Fourth, we would accept the will of God as our program of life, everything acknowledging His will and unflinching walking therein.

Is that too much to expect of the Christian? Then we cannot say that we have "sanctified the Lord God in our hearts." One is not competent to embody Christianity until he has sanctified the Lord God in his or her heart—until the Lordship of Christ is as much a fact as the Saviourship of Jesus.

This lesson will be tossed aside as an impossible ideal or accepted as the simple, inevitable way of life. Some, thank God, have accepted it and their lives fill the pages of history with a sweet fragrance. One thinks of Francis of Assisi, of Livingston, of Grenfell, of William Booth, of John Wesley and of countless others. Paul said: "I live, and yet not I, Christ liveth in me." That is the way of life to which Peter is exhorting us in Sunday's lesson. Let us think of it—seek it with all our hearts.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

FERDINAND'S REVENGE Thursday night your correspondent was in the city of Morven, which is not far distant from Quilman, attending a father-and-son banquet of the Future Farmers of America.

There had been a very fine livestock show in the afternoon with the boys competing for cash prizes offered by Brooks county's very active Kiwanis Club. The steers and the hogs were left in pens just outside the gymnasium where was being held the dinner.

While attempting a talk, your correspondent had, inspired by having seen the very fine animals, recalled the story of Colonel Jack Smith, the Texan who owned a very fast bull.

The colonel used to sit around the club in Dallas and tell the boys about his bull. The Texas Pacific and the Santa Fe railroads crossed the colonel's large ranch, which stretched for 40 miles in width. The bull, the colonel said, would meet the Southern Pacific in the morning and race it across the 40 miles of ranch and crossed and beat it to the other side.

Came the day when the boys at the club, weary of the story, drove out to surprise the colonel. From the veranda of his home which sat on a knoll, he saw them coming and recognized the car. "Uncle Bob," he said to his negro major domo, "here come the boys from the club. I can't let them catch me. I'm going to hide and you handle the boys." He retired.

THE BOYS ARRIVE The boys arrived. "Uncle Bob, where is the colonel?" "He ain't here. He left this morning." "Where'd he go, Uncle Bob?" "He's gonna stop at New Orleans and den go on to Washington and New York."

"When will he be back, Uncle Bob?" "Late this evening, I think, gentlemen."

"This evening! My goodness, is he traveling by plane?" "No, suh. He's ridin' dat bull of hisin'."

That was the story and personally I know of no reason why the Ferdinands in the pens outside should have become irritated by it. Nevertheless, there was one that did.

Every time your correspondent reached what he hoped was an effective point, this infuriated Ferdinand would lift his head and emit a cat-crow and lingering "Moooooooooooooooooo." It came faintly and yet distinctly through the walls of the gymnasium where the dinner was being held. It was a bullish boo.

Your correspondent worked away at that bullish boo all evening. If the guests heard they were too polite to give sign. But never once did the bull care for a point, no matter how effective. Faintly, yet persistently, he answered, "Moooooooooooooooooo."

Your correspondent trusts he sits on a bee, as did Ferdinand, but wishes no severer punishment. After all, freedom of speech is freedom of speech. A good boo is the birthright of every American. This particular bull apparently had read the bill of rights.

THE FUTURE FARMERS The Future Farmers of America are one of the organizations which supplies hope for the future. These boys are high school agricultural students who receive training which enables them to remain in their communities and farm. I saw the farm of one of the graduates of the class of 1930 in Brooks county. He had no money. He began as a renter. Today he owns a fine farm, has the necessary equipment and stock and is paying off his bills. There are others like him.

Graduates of the vocational schools of agriculture remain in their counties. A survey shows that about 70 per cent of them remain in their counties. This is a much higher percentage than other groups show.

It was amazing to hear the Brooks county clubs read off their projects for the past year. These boys do not get mere theory. They work. They had wheat projects last year in cotton, corn, soybeans, peas, peanuts, beans, tobacco, snap beans, watermelons, sweet potatoes and brood mares.

These high school boys produced an income of $7,932.92 from their projects in 1938. They are high school boys and they soon will be coming out of high school not seeking to leave the farms but to remain on them. Federal legislation to enable them to rent or buy land and stock would be much more valuable than the present purchasing act for farm tenants.

THEY KNOW WHY These vocational boys know the why of things. County agents will tell you that instance, not to burn off their fields but to turn under the stalks and natural grasses. Some farmers do not understand why. So it makes little impression. These boys have had chemistry in relation to farming. They know why. They know "the why" of many problems which their farmer fathers do not understand.

These schools are doing magnificent work. It is work which the state needs more than any other one type. It holds more hope for the future which must see agriculture balance with industry if the state is to develop as it can and should.

They will have their program interrupted and halted if the schools are closed by reason of the legislature's failure to create funds to maintain them.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

My Dear Louise:

If your side doesn't win the debate, you will have no alibi, for truth and logic and decency are with you. The hanging or electrocution of a 17-year-old boy for any crime whatsoever is wrong and brutal and inexcusable.

A kid that age knows right from wrong, of course, but he doesn't know how to keep from doing wrong. When he is caught in some folly and asked why he did it, he answers: "I didn't think." The truth is that he thought too much. He hypnotized himself.

When the thought first entered his mind, it was a mere suggestion. Without intent to do wrong and without committing himself at all, he entertained the suggestion and began to day-dream about it—going through the action in his imagination. And from that moment he was lost.

He made no bold resolve. He simply kept thinking about the thing, planning how it would be without admitting to himself that he really intended to do it, and the idea kept drawing him along and he was so fascinated by it that he scarcely realized where dream and deed and action began. When the thing was done, the full realization of it was like coming out of a trance.

When he says he didn't think, he means that he didn't think of what would follow.

George Charges Plot on Patronage

Senator Accuses Administration Is Using Power To Obtain Control of State Delegation in '40.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
WASHINGTON, March 17.—As an aftermath of the recent appointment of an RFC loan agency manager for Georgia, Senator Walter F. George today charged political heads of the Roosevelt administration with using federal patronage in an attempt to control the coming 1940 Democratic National Convention.

In an informal interview with newspapermen who were questioning him on the pending departmental reorganization bill, the Georgia senator, one of those the administration sought to purge in the 1938 campaign, said that patronage committees were being set up in some of the states with a view to aiding in the selection of delegates to the next national convention.

Such a committee is already functioning in Georgia, he declared, naming Governor Rivers, State Democratic Chairman Jim Gillis and United States District Attorney Lawrence Camp, of Atlanta, his New Deal opponent in the 1938 campaign, as the three directing members.

"We all know that is happening in Georgia," he said, "and I understand that substantially the same thing is taking place in several other states."

While the present appointment is not subject to senatorial confirmation, Senator George served notice that he would reserve the right to oppose any other nomination made by the administration in Georgia at the recommendation of the so-called Rivers-Gillis-Camp patronage group.

A rumble over the state patronage situation was seen in the offing last week when the RFC announced the selection of M. E. Everett, of Dublin, and William J. Hobbs, formerly attached to headquarters here, as manager and counsel, respectively, of the Georgia agency. It was understood at the time that neither of the Georgia senators had been consulted.

Everett Selection.
The Hobbs appointment is said to have been made without political considerations, he having been assigned to the Atlanta office as acting counsel ever since the ouster last summer of Edgar B. Dunlap, of Gainesville, who was forced out on a charge of having violated RFC rules against participating in a political campaign. In the case of Mr. Everett, however, his name is known to have been selected from a list of three candidates presented for the post by District Attorney Camp, State Chairman Gillis and the Governor.

The Everett post was formerly held by Scott Candler, of Decatur, who resigned to become a candidate for DeKalb county commissioner. Both Candler and Dunlap were supporters of Senator George in the 1938 primary.

Senator George had indicated a purpose to say something about the state patronage situation perhaps in a speech on the floor, but is understood to have been waiting for the return to Washington of Senator Richard B. Russell, of Georgia, now in the state. Whether the matter will be discussed further later on remains to be seen. Both senators are said to be somewhat irked by the failure of administration political heads to discuss state patronage matters with them.

Senate Debate.
Pending Russell's return, Senator George would not amplify his charge. The whole question of patronage and its relation to the coming presidential campaign grew out of a brief discussion on the floor between the Georgia senator and Senator Byrnes, of South Carolina, during debate. Senator Byrnes had been complaining of the pressure brought by jobholders on individual members of congress against disturbing the departmental setup of bureaus in which they are employed.

"Let me suggest to the senator from South Carolina," Senator George said, "that there would not be so much interference by senators and members of the house under the new dispensation, under which an administration sets up patronage committees in the states; patronage committees, I might add, which are supposed to have much to do with the selection of the delegates to the next national convention. The pressure will not be coming from the senators, but it will be coming from these patronage committees in the states. Perhaps the senate would finally arrive at the point where it could pass a reorganization bill."

He named the personnel of the Georgia committee when newspapermen called him off the floor to ask that he explain the reference.

A CAPELLA CHOIR OFF FOR TOUR INTO EAST
SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.
MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., March 17.—The capella choir, composed of students of the Georgia State College for Women and the Georgia Military College, left here today for an extensive tour of the east.

First stop was at Greensboro, N. C., where they sang tonight. Tomorrow night, they will appear in Washington, and then in Shiloh, N. J. They will appear in a broadcast over the National Broadcasting Company network in New York at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

On the return trip, the choir will sing in Pennsburg, Pa.; Petersburg, Va.; Farmville, N. C.; Wallace, N. C.; and Hartsville, S. C., and will give its home concert March 27.

About 50 students are making the trip, according to Max Noah, director of the organization.

Mercury To Rise Following Frost

Slowly rising temperatures will follow this morning's frost and low reading of 35 degrees, the United States Weather Bureau reported last night.

Forecasting frost for the third successive day, bureau officials said that this morning's chill probably marks the end of the cold weather that spread over the south Wednesday night and Thursday, sending Atlanta thermometers down to 33 degrees yesterday and 36 degrees the day before. Yesterday's high was 53 degrees.

NEW PLANE ROUTE ACTION IS PUSHED

Hearing Before Summer by CAA Asked by Delta Airlines.

Application of Delta Air Lines for a certificate of convenience and necessity to operate between Atlanta and Cincinnati, Louisville and Lexington is expected to come before the Civil Aeronautics Authority before summer, C. E. Faulk, president of the company, said here yesterday.

The line has petitioned for permission to operate the new service, connecting in Atlanta with its Charlotte, Augusta, Birmingham and Fort Worth line.

Faulk, together with a group of prominent Atlantans, made a survey flight of the proposed line Thursday as far as Knoxville, and there conferred with businessmen of the other cities where stops will be made.

According to the planned schedule, Delta planes will leave here at approximately 7 o'clock in the morning, and land in Cincinnati two hours and 40 minutes later. The planes will leave the Ohio city in time to be back in Atlanta by 3 or 4 o'clock in the afternoon. No night flights are planned immediately, it was said.

A t l a n t a n s who accompanied Faulk on the trip included Frank Shaw, industrial secretary of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce; Cecil Hester, chairman of the aviation committee of city council, and P. L. Higgins, Delta operations manager.

OPTIMISTS STAGE MINSTREL PARADE

March Draws Attention to Show Scheduled for Tuesday.

To stimulate interest in its minstrel show at the municipal auditorium at 8 o'clock Tuesday night for the benefit of underprivileged children of the city, the Atlanta Optimists' Club staged a parade in the downtown section of the business district yesterday. It was the first minstrel parade held here in 15 years.

Proceeds from the show and from a canvass inaugurated by members of the organization will be used to send approximately 1,000 youngsters from the poorer homes of the city to the camp at Lake Rutledge, Ga., for a week's vacation this summer.

The camp is located on a 6,000-acre site rented by the Optimists from the government. Last year the organization entertained 500 boys at the camp and expects to double the amount this summer.

CITY CIVIL SERVICE VOTED BY SENATE

Measure Sent Back to House for Approval of Millican Amendments.

A bill establishing civil service for city employees, already passed by the house, was amended and adopted without an opposing vote yesterday afternoon by the senate.

The measure goes back to the house for concurrence with several amendments tacked on by Senator G. Everett Millican.

Under its provisions, the mayor would be authorized to name a civil service board of three persons with the consent and advice of council. The board would appoint a personnel director at a salary of $3,600 per year, who would arrange examinations and compile records.

All employees who have been with the city for at least 90 days, would come under the civil service rules. Future promotions and employment would be guided by examinations open to all.

ELUSIVE WHITEHEAD GETS 3 MORE YEARS

Heavily Guarded Prisoner Pleads Guilty to Two U. S. Indictments.

Handcuffed and heavily guarded, Thomas Jefferson Whitehead left Federal Judge E. Marvin Underwood's court yesterday with an additional three years added to the ten-year term he recently began to serve in the Atlanta federal penitentiary.

Whitehead pleaded guilty to two of the three indictments brought against him by the March term of the federal grand jury, one charging him with impersonating a federal officer, the other with transporting a stolen automobile. No action was taken on the third indictment, accusing Whitehead of transporting another stolen car.

He was sentenced to three years on each of the two charges, the terms to run concurrently, and to begin at the expiration of the present sentence, given him by a Tennessee federal court, on a previous charge of impersonating a federal agent.

Hard to hold, Whitehead escaped from a deputy of the United States marshal's office several years ago en route from Atlanta to the federal reformatory in Chillicothe, Ohio. He was later recaptured, and served his term.

Wanted on another charge, he was wounded in a gun battle with officers last December near Lakeview, Ga., and escaped from a Chattanooga hospital in his guard's uniform. Claiming he was an agent of the FBI, he commandeered a car in Chickamauga, and drove to Atlanta. Reputedly captured by G-men here, he was supposed to have jumped from their car on the way to the county jail. He was picked up later in Huntsville, Ala., and has been in custody since.

CLAYTON VOTES TODAY ON DRY LAW REPEAL

Clayton county voters were urged yesterday by Thomas G. Lewis, president of the Georgia Anti-Liquor League, to go to the polls today and vote against the legalization of whisky in that county.

In a statement issued at his office here, the dry leader declared, "If Clayton county citizens wish to keep that county dry, it is necessary that every registered voter who is against whisky take time to vote."

Tommy Read Named Fox Manager As Edwards Goes to Savannah

Lucas & Jenkins Chain Announces Shifts in Personnel.

Tommy Read, for several years manager of the Paramount theater, yesterday was named manager of the Fox theater, succeeding Hudson Edwards, who has been appointed city manager of the Lucas & Jenkins theaters in Savannah.

Read, while young in years, nevertheless has had wide theatrical experience and only recently successfully promoted a 10-day engagement of Phil Spitalny's all-girl band on the Paramount stage. He came to Atlanta from Charlotte, N. C., and has made many friends here.

E. M. Whitaker, district manager of the Lucas & Jenkins theaters, announced the three appointments were in line with the company's policy of promoting its own men.

The Fox will continue showing the best of the first-run films, Read announced.

DR. ANDREW SLEDD LAST RITES TODAY

Dr. W. A. Smart and Dr. J. W. O. McKibben Will Officiate at 11 O'Clock.

Funeral services for Dr. Andrew Sladd, nationally known Bible scholar and a faculty member of the Emory University School of Theology for 25 years, who died unexpectedly Thursday morning of a heart attack, will be conducted at 11 o'clock this morning at the First Methodist church, Decatur.

Dr. W. A. Smart and Dr. J. W. O. McKibben will officiate and burial will be in the Decatur cemetery under direction of H. M. Patterson and Son.

Pallbearers will be E. C. Caldwell, Dr. J. Sam Guy, Hugh H. Harris, Dr. Edgar H. Johnson, W. P. Johnston, Dr. W. S. Neils, Dr. Douglas Rumble and Dr. H. B. Trimble.

Honorary pallbearers will be Dr. C. E. Boyd, Arva C. Floyd, Dr. J. F. Messick, Dr. J. B. Peebles, Dr. J. Harris Purks Jr., Dr. R. C. Rhodes, Professor J. Gordon Stipe, Dr. E. K. Judge's Birthday Gives a Break to Lottery Prisoner

Judge Jesse M. Wood, of the criminal court of Fulton county, yesterday observed—off the record—his fifty-ninth birthday, and Tom Bradley, convicted lottery operator, got a break.

A jury in Judge Wood's division of the court found Bradley guilty, and because of a party which had been arranged for Wood, sentence was deferred until Monday. In the interim, Bradley was free under a $1,000 bond.

Bradley, according to police officers, went into the lottery racket as a sort of free-lance just after a clean-up in Fulton county last summer. He was convicted in Clayton county several months ago and sentenced to serve 12 months and pay a fine of $1,000 when officials staged a raid on an alleged bug headquarters there.

Following that, Fulton officers raided a Pryor street place. The conviction yesterday was a result of that action.

DIXIE'S CONFIDENCE IN BUSINESS LAUDED

Vincent Cullen Predicts 'Gradual Pickup' in Next Few Months.

Confidence of southern business leaders in the future was commended yesterday by Vincent Cullen, president of the National Surety Corporation, of New York, here on a business trip.

"Southern businessmen seem to be more confident of the future than those of the north, but I think the south's attitude is gradually drifting up our way," he said.

Cullen said "on the surface" business in the southeast seemed to be improving. He predicted a "gradual pickup" during the next few months. Attitude of the national administration, favorable sentiment and increased confidence in the future were cited as reasons for this prediction.

He added that his own company's business had increased in the southeast this year. He voiced the opinion the present congress would take no detrimental stabs at business.

Cullen was accompanied to Atlanta by Sherman Drake, vice president of the surety corporation. Cullen will leave today for Richmond, Va.

Text of Prime Minister Chamberlain's Bitter Attack on Hitler's Czech Coup

SHOCK OF HITLER ACTION DESCRIBED BY BRITISH LEADER

Far-Reaching Effect Awaited, He Declares; Discloses That Lack of Information Was Felt.

BIRMINGHAM, March 17.—(AP) Following is the text of Prime Minister Chamberlain's address at Birmingham tonight:

It has been rather indiscreetly disclosed to you that I should have been celebrating my 70th birthday. I had hoped to keep that quiet, but since the cat has been let out of the bag, I am not going to deny it. Only I don't see what I can do about it, except to thank you all for your good wishes and to say to you that as I am still sound in wind and limb, I hope that I may have a few more years before me in which to give what service I can to the state that I should be wanted.

I had intended tonight to talk to you upon a variety of subjects, upon trade and employment, upon social service and upon finance.

But, ladies and gentlemen, tremendous events which have been taking place this week in Europe have thrown everything else into the background and I feel that what you and those who are not in this hall but who are listening to me will want to hear is some indication of the views of His Majesty's government as to the nature and implication of those events.

Well, one thing is certain. Public opinion in the world has received a sharper shock than has ever yet been administered to it, even by the present regime in Germany.

What may be the ultimate effects of this profound disturbance on men's minds can not yet be foretold, but I am sure that it must be far-reaching in its results upon the future.

PARTIAL INFORMATION HANDICAPPED DEBATE

Last Wednesday we had a debate upon it in the house of commons. That was the day in which German troops entered Czechoslovakia and all of us, particularly the government, were at a disadvantage because information that we had was only partial. We had no time to digest it, much less to form a considered opinion upon it.

And so it necessarily followed that I, speaking in behalf of the government with all that responsibility that attaches to the position, was obliged to confine myself to a very restrained and cautious exposition on which at the time I felt I could make but little commentary.

And perhaps naturally that somewhat cool and objective statement gave rise to misapprehension and some people thought that because I spoke quietly, because I gave little expression to feeling, that therefore my colleagues and I didn't feel strongly on the subject. I hope I am correct that statement tonight.

But before I come to my comments I want to say something first about the argument which has developed out of these events and which was used in that debate and has appeared since in various quarters of the press.

It has been suggested that this occupation of Czechoslovakia was a direct consequence of the visit which I paid Germany last autumn and that since the result of these events has been to tear up the settlement that was arrived at at Munich, that proves that the whole circumstances of those visits were wrong.

And it is said that as this was the personal policy of the prime minister, the blame for the fate of Czechoslovakia must rest upon his shoulders.

UNWARRANTABLE CONCLUSION

That is an entirely unwarrantable conclusion. The facts are that they are today cannot change the facts as they were last September.

If I was right then, I am still right now.

Then there are some people who say "we consider you were wrong in September and now we have been proved to be right."

Let me examine that. When I decided to go to Germany I never expected I was going to escape criticism.

Indeed, I did not go there to get popularity. I went there first and foremost because, in what appeared to be almost a desperate situation, that seemed to me to offer the only chance of averting a European war.

I might remind you that when it was first announced I was going, not a voice was raised in criticism. Everyone applauded that effort and it was only later—when it appeared the results of the final settlement fell short of the expectations of some who didn't fully appreciate the facts—it was only then that the attack began and even then it wasn't the visit, it was the terms of settlement that were disapproved.

Well, I have never denied that the terms which I was able to secure at Munich were not those I myself would have desired, but as I explained then, I had to deal with no new problem.

This was something that had existed ever since the treaty of Versailles—a problem that ought to have been solved long ago if only the statesmen of the last 20 years had taken broader and more enlightened views of their duty.

It had become like a disease which had been long neglected and a surgical operation was necessary to save the life of the patient.

After all, the first and most immediate object of my visit was achieved. The peace of Europe was saved, and, if it had been for those visits, hundreds of thousands of families would today have been in mourning for the flower of Europe's best manhood.

It would like once again to express my grateful thanks to all those correspondents who have written me from all over the world to express their gratitude and appreciation of what I did then and of what I have been trying to do since.

NO NEED TO DEFEND VISITS TO GERMANY

Really, I have no need to defend my visits to Germany last autumn, for what was the alternative?

Nothing that we could have done, nothing that France could have done, or Russia could have done, never could we have reconquered Czechoslovakia from invasion and destruction.

Even if we had subsequently gone to war to punish Germany for her actions and if, after the frightful losses which would have been inflicted upon all victors in the war we had been victorious in the end, never could we have reconquered Czechoslovakia as she was framed by the treaty of Versailles.

But I had another purpose too in going to Munich—that was to further the policy which I have been pursuing ever since I have been in my present position—a policy which is sometimes called European appeasement although I don't think myself that that is a very happy term or one which accurately describes its purpose.

If that policy were to succeed it was essential that no power should seek to obtain general domination of Europe; but that each one should be contented to obtain reasonable facilities for developing its own resources, securing its own share of international trade and improving the conditions of its own people.

And I felt that although that might well mean a clash of interests between different states, nevertheless by the exercise of mutual good-will and an understanding of what were the limits of the desires of others, it should be possible to reach a general agreement by discussion and without armed conflict.

I had hoped in going to Munich to find out by personal contact what was in Herr Hitler's mind and whether it was likely to be in a program of that kind.

Well, the atmosphere in which our discussions were conducted was not a very favorable one because we were in the midst of an acute crisis.

But nevertheless in the interval between more official conversations I had some opportunities of talking with him and of hearing his views and I thought the results not altogether unsatisfactory.

When I came back after my second visit I told the house of commons of the conversation I had had with Herr Hitler of which I said that speaking with great earnestness, he repeated what he had already said at Berchtesgaden—namely that this was the last of his territorial ambitions in Europe and that he had no wish to include in the Reich people of other races than Germans.

QUOTES DICTATOR ON TERRITORIES

Herr Hitler himself confirmed this account of the conversation in a speech which he made at the Sportsplatz in Berlin when he said: "This is the last territorial claim which I have to make in Europe."

And a little later in the same speech he said: "I have assured Mr. Chamberlain that I emphasize it now that when this problem is solved, Germany has no more territorial problems in Europe." And he added: "I shall not be interested in the Czech state any more and I can guarantee it. We don't want any Czechs any more."

And then, in the Munich agreement itself, which bears Herr Hitler's signature, there is this clause: "The final determination of the frontier will be carried out by an international commission"—the final determination, which he and I signed together at Munich we declared that any other question which might concern our two countries should be dealt with by a method of consultation.

Well, in view of those repeated assurances given voluntarily to me, I considered myself justified in founding the hope upon them that once this Czechoslovakian problem was settled, as it seemed at Munich it would be possible, to carry further that policy of appeasement which I had described.

But notwithstanding, at the same time I was not prepared to relax precautions until I was satisfied that policy had been established and had been accepted by others, and therefore after Munich our defense program was actually accelerated and it was expanded so as to remedy certain weaknesses which had become apparent during the crisis.

HOPES OF ENGLISH WANTONLY DASHED

I am convinced that after Munich the great majority of the British people shared my hope and ardently desired that that policy should be carried further, but to-day I share their disappointment, their indignation, that those hopes have been so wantonly shattered.

Well, ladies and gentlemen, how can these events which happened this week be reconciled with those assurances which I have read out to you? Surely, as a joint signatory of the Munich agreement I was entitled, if Herr Hitler thought it ought to be done, to have the assurance that he would not be excluded from the Munich declaration. Instead of that he has taken the law into his own hands.

Before even the Czech president was received and was confronted with demands which he had no power to resist, the German troops were on the move, and within a few hours they were in the Czech capital.

According to a proclamation which was read out in Prague today, Bohemia and Moravia have been annexed to the German Reich. Now German inhabitants, of course, Czechs, are placed under a German protectorate.

They are to be subject to the political, military and economic needs of the Reich. They are called self-governing states but the Reich is to take charge of their foreign policy, their customs and their equipment of disarmed Czech forces. And perhaps most sinister of all, we hear again of the appearance of the Gestapo, the secret police, followed by the usual tale of wholesale arrests of prominent individuals with consequences with which we are all familiar.

HEARTS GO OUT TO PROUD PEOPLE

Every man and woman in this country who remembers the fate of the Jews and political prisoners in Austria must be filled today with distress and foreboding. Who can fail to feel his heart go out in sympathy to the proud and brave people who have so suddenly been subjected to this invasion, whose liberties have been curtailed, whose national independence has gone? What has become of the declaration of "no further territorial ambitions"?

What has become of the assurance "we don't want Czechs in the Reich"? What regard has been paid to that principle of self-determination on which Herr Hitler argued so vehemently with me at Berchtesgaden when he was asking for the severance of the Sudetenland from Czechoslovakia and its inclusion in the German Reich?

Now we are told that this seizure of territory has been necessitated by disturbances in Czechoslovakia. We are told that the proclamation of this new German protectorate against the will of its inhabitants has been rendered inevitable by disorders which threatened the peace and security of her mighty neighbor.

DISORDERS FOMENTED FROM WITHOUT?

If there were disorders, were they not fomented from without? And can anybody outside Germany take seriously the idea that they could be a danger to that great country, that they could provide any justification for what has happened?

Doesn't the question inevitably remain in our minds, if it is so easy to discover good reasons for ignoring assurances so solemnly and so repeatedly given, what reliance can be placed upon any other assurances that come from the same source?

There is another set of questions which almost inevitably must occur to our minds and to the minds of others, perhaps even in Germany hearts. Germany under her present regime has sprung a series of unpleasant surprises upon the world. The Rhineland, the Austrian Anschluss, the severance of Sudetenland—all these things shocked and affronted public opinion throughout the world.

Yet, however much we might take exception to the methods which were adopted in each of those cases, there is something to be said, whether on account of racial affinity or of just claims too long resisted—there is something to be said for the necessity of change in the existing situation.

IS THIS THE LAST ATTACK? HE INQUIRES

But the events which have taken place this week in complete disregard of the principles laid down by the German government itself seem to fall into a different category and they must cause us all to be asking ourselves: Is this the end of an old adventure or is it the beginning of a new?

Is this the last attack upon a small state or is it to be followed by others? Is this in fact a step in the direction of an attempt to dominate the world by force? Ladies and gentlemen, those are grave and serious questions.

I am not going to answer them tonight but I am sure they will require grave and serious consideration, not only of Germany's neighbors but of others perhaps even beyond the confines of Europe.

Already there are indications that the process has begun and it is obvious that it is likely now to be speeded up.

We ourselves will naturally turn first to our partners in the British Commonwealth of nations and to France to whom we are so closely bound and I have no doubt that, too, knowing that we are not disinterested in what goes on in southeastern Europe will wish to have our counsel and advice.

In our own country we must all review the position with that sense of responsibility which its gravity demands. Nothing must be excluded from that review which bears upon the national safety. Every aspect of our national life must be looked at again from that angle.

ASKS INDIVIDUALS TO REVIEW POSITIONS

The government as always must bear the main responsibility but I know that every individual will wish to review their own position, too, and to consider again if they have done all they can to offer their service to the state.

I do not believe there is anyone who will question my sincerity when I say there is hardly anything I wouldn't sacrifice for peace. But there is one thing which I believe is the liberty that we have enjoyed for hundreds of years and which we will never surrender.

That I, of all men, should feel called upon to make such a declaration—that is the measure of the extent to which these events have shattered the confidence which was just beginning to show its head and which, if it had been allowed to grow, might have made this year memorable for the return of all Europe to sanity and stability. It was only six weeks ago that I was speaking in this city and that I alluded to rumors and suspicions which I said ought to be swept away. I pointed out that any demand to dominate the world by force was one which democracies must resist and I added that I couldn't believe such a challenge was intended, because no government with the interests of its people at heart could expose them for such a claim to horrors of a World War.

VALUE PEACE INDEED, VALUE FREEDOM MORE

And indeed, with the lessons of history for all to read, it seems incredible that we should see such a challenge, and I feel bound to repeat that while I am not prepared to exclude the possibility of a new and unspecified commitments operating under conditions which cannot now be foreseen, yet no greater mistake could be made than to suppose that because it believes war to be a senseless and cruel thing, this nation has so lost its fibre that it will not take part to the utmost of its power in resisting such a challenge if it ever were made.

And for that declaration I am convinced that I have not merely the support, sympathy, the confidence of my fellow countrymen and countrywomen, but I shall have also the approval of all the whole British empire and of all the other nations who value peace indeed, but who value freedom even more.

PERTINAX EXPECTS FURTHER ADVANCES

Rest of Central Europe Cannot Avoid Hitler, He Says.

By PERTINAX.
(Copyright, 1939, for The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

PARIS, March 15.—(By Wireless.)—Czechoslovakia does not exist any more. It has been absorbed into the German Reich in a manner not unlike that used in the case of Austria. It will be left a restricted measure of cultural autonomy. For instance, a few Czech newspapers will be allowed to be printed. Already a concentration camp has been created.

But the Pan-German onslaught will extend sooner or later to neighboring countries. Rumania, Yugoslavia, Poland and Hungary had set their faces afresh against Pan-Germanism of late months in response to the resounding speeches delivered by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Chamberlain and to the firm tone of French public opinion. They will now have to toe the line.

Hungary is not likely to escape the common fate. She will have to pay a dear price for the invasion of Carpatho-Ukraine, probably conclusion of a military alliance with Germany, not to mention a customs union.

French Foreign Minister Bonnet did not foresee anything. He was left in complete ignorance of Germany's decisions. He had to learn them from the newspapers and the radio. Last week, his visitors were struck by the unbounded optimism he freely expressed. Bonnet was convinced the hour had struck to negotiate economic agreements with the German Reich in order to honor the Fuehrer and his advisers.

The four-power guarantee of Czechoslovakia's frontier, promised to the Prague government last September 23, had not been taken into account in the objection raised in Berlin. But it must be added that, until that guarantee came into force, the French government was still bound by the Franco-Czechoslovak treaty of October 10, 1935. It is very significant that the abyss of despair into which it had been thrown, the Czechoslovak cabinet never dreamed of appealing for French assistance.

Therefore, Ambassador Coulondre did no more today than to inform the French Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop and ask him to explain the new policy of the German government regarding Czechoslovakia. Von Ribbentrop must have told him, as he did Sir Neville Henderson, the British ambassador, who had been sent on a similar errand, that the affairs of central Europe were exclusively Germany's concern, and that nobody else had to meddle with them.

HITLER IS WARNED BY CHAMBERLAIN

"In the end will bitterly regret what her government has done." Reviewing the assurances he had received from Hitler that Germany did not want any Czechs and recalling that Hitler said last September that the Sudetenland "is the last territorial claim I have to make in Europe," Chamberlain asked bitterly:

"What reliance can we place upon any such assurances that come from the same quarter? . . . What has become of those disclaimers of further territorial ambition? . . .

"If there were disorders (in Czechoslovakia recently) were they not fomented from without? Can anyone outside Germany take seriously that there could have been any danger to Germany? . . .

"Is this the last attack upon a small state, or is it to be followed by others? . . .

"The end in fact a step in the direction of an attempt to dominate the world by force? . . .

In stating Britain would resist any attempt to dominate the world by force, Chamberlain added that he was confident that he would have the not only the support of the whole British empire, but of all other nations who value peace indeed, but who value freedom even more."

(In Washington a few hours before Chamberlain spoke Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles, acting with the approval of President Roosevelt, expressed the United States government's "condemnation" of Germany's "wantonly lawlessness" and "arbitrary force" in occupying Czechoslovakia.)

The tremendous events which have taken place in Europe this week have thrown everything else into the background," said Chamberlain.

"One thing is certain. Public opinion in the world has received the sharpest shock since ever been administered to it, even by the present regime in Germany. . . . What may be the future effects of this profound disturbance of men's minds cannot yet be foretold, but I am sure that its results upon the future will be far-reaching."

Later he said: "In our own country we must review our own position. . . . Nothing must be excluded from that review which bears upon the national safety. Every aspect of our national life must be looked at from that angle."

"I know every individual will wish to review his own position, too, and to consider again if they have done all they could to offer their services to the state."

General Jan Szyrovsky, who last fall was ready to lead his Czech army against the Germans, shakes hands with Hitler at Hradany castle in Prague where Hitler slept after entering the city.

NAZI PRESS CRACKS BACK AT CRITICISM GERMAN CONQUEST DENOUNCED BY U. S.

Nazi salute after crowds outside had shouted repeatedly: "Seig Heil!" ("Hail Victory!") and "We want to see our Fuehrer!"

The Nazi press, occupied for several days with the details of Germany's new possessions, began to open up on criticism from other lands of the methods employed in absorbing the Czechs and Slovaks.

Britain's action in calling back her ambassador, Sir Neville Henderson, from Berlin to report in London was dismissed derisively as a futile gesture by Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung.

Referring to President Roosevelt's order of last November 14 to Ambassador Hugh R. Wilson to return to Washington, a gesture of disapproval of Germany's anti-Semitic drive, the publication said:

"The recall of an ambassador for report is a method introduced into international politics by Roosevelt. If they expect any results from it in London—well, let them do what they cannot refrain from doing."

"Not the slightest change in the situation is brought about thereby."

Nachtausgabe declared: "It always is unimaginable to the English that something should happen in the world—whether it affects their vital interests or not, whether it is good or evil makes no difference—without England be asked beforehand."

The times of Versailles and of Geneva, it said, are gone forever and Hitler will go into history as "the greatest German whom destiny has given us."

Diplomatisch-Politische Korrespondenz, semi-official mouthpiece of the foreign office, described as "fairly states" reports that Germany intended to use Carpatho-Ukraine, now annexed by Hungary, as a corridor to the east.

Obviously referring to the western democracies, the publication said:

"Instead of meddling with the affairs of others, these powers should make it their business to bring peace and contentment to the nationalities of which they have taken charge."

Dienst Aus Deutschland published a "worthy of attention" statement from an interview with Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering in which Germany's second man said:

"The Czechs have been granted far greater autonomy than they formerly gave to the Sudeten Germans."

Comment was reserved in official quarters in Berlin on Britain's summons to Sir Neville to return to London "to report."

A spokesman merely said that it was a "perfectly normal act" in such an unusual situation.

Hitler also left behind him his triumphant round trip a gathering cloud of apprehension in eastern Europe, especially among Ukrainians and Poles.

Ukrainians saw their dream of an independent state endangered by the new developments. Poles regarded the tipping of the balance of power and the new neighbor on their southern border with anxious eyes.

While Berlin spokesmen cautioned against any exaggeration of the number of arrests in Bohemia and Moravia, they admitted that some arrests were necessary to rid the newly acquired regions of "harmful elements."

Gestapo men (secret police) were active especially in Prague, where even some leaders of social welfare organizations were taken into custody.

(A Prague dispatch said official figures on arrests were not available but one estimate was that about 600 persons had been jailed. The former military camp at Mikovice, 25 miles from Prague, was turned into a concentration camp. Prague hospitals reported 80 suicides among Jews. Non-Jews began taking over the administration of Jewish-owned stores. Jews

DICTATOR POWERS WINS FIRST TEST

Chamber Committee Votes 26 to 17 To Give Daladier 'Big Stick.'

PARIS, (Saturday), March 18. (UP)—The finance committee of the chamber of deputies today approved a bill to grant special powers to Premier Daladier to enable him to deal with German expansion in central Europe.

The vote was 26 to 17. Socialist and Communists voted against the bill.

The measure was presented to the chamber by the premier late yesterday. It would give Daladier virtual dictatorial powers including those of mobilization and other measures necessary to meet the Nazi threat.

Passage Expected. Passage of the bill was expected by government supporters, who said Daladier would have the most sweeping powers vested in any French premier since the World War.

He is expected to receive the powers by Monday morning. The chamber is to debate his demand tomorrow and the senate will convene Sunday to consider the declaration. While Socialist and Communist opposition is anticipated, Daladier is virtually conceded victory.

Daladier appeared to be looking in the direction of Italy as well as Germany.

In presenting the bill to the deputies Daladier called its attention "to the necessity of extremely vigorous rapid action."

Needs Flexibility. "I do not intend to imperil free initiative," the premier said, "but want to be able to fight at least with equal arms to those regimes whose success is due to the fact that they are able to make decisions secretly."

The powers which Daladier demanded, though he would not make them public in all details, would permit mobilization of army reserves and labor, extension of the 40-hour work week law to any desired limit, conscription of industries for war purposes, rewriting of pacts and alliances, placing orders at home or abroad for any needed war materials, including planes, and if the opportunity would present itself to reach a bargain with Premier Benito Mussolini to settle Italian claims to Suez, Djibouti, and Tunisia by giving Mussolini satisfaction he can be won away from the totalitarian axis.

He described the grant of dictatorial powers as "the only means of saving peace."

ECCLES PREACHING 'WASTE,' SAYS BYRD

Senator Accuses Reserve Board of Becoming Propaganda Agency.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—(P) Senator Byrd, Democrat, Virginia, charged in the senate today that the Federal Reserve Board had become a propaganda agency for administration spending and that its chairman, Marriner S. Eccles, was preaching "reckless waste and thriftlessness."

The Virginian, who has quarreled with Eccles for months over the latter's theories of deficit spending, brought the reserve board chairman's name into the debate on the pending government reorganization bill.

He introduced an amendment to the bill which would have Congress assert that "continued national deficits" make a reduction in government spending "imperative," that a reduction can best be attained through reorganization, and that "substantial retrenchment can best come" from the President.

The senate debated the bill briefly today, but postponed until Monday all action on the measure which would give Mr. Roosevelt power to consolidate or abolish most government agencies, unless both houses of Congress disapprove his specific reorganization plans.

NEW TRAFFIC LIGHTS.

Czech Chamber Closed in N. Y.

NEW YORK, March 17.—(P) Officials of the American-Czechoslovak Chamber of Commerce closed the office today after draping the Czechoslovak map in mourning.

Frank J. Rosen, secretary, and several of his aids were in tears as they looked about their quarters and read again and again the dispatches from Prague which told them their homeland no longer existed as an independent nation.

"I would rather close the office than have some one come in and take it away from me," Rosen said.

LOVE COMES LAST

Andy Knocks Hannah Down, Thereby Causing Bullet to Miss Laura

By JULIA ANNE MOORE.

INSTALLMENT XXXV.

"Presently," Hannah replied. "But not just yet. I want to ask Laura a few questions first and if you're wise, you won't interfere. Bart," she turned to Laura, said, "Make no mistake about it, Laura, I'm going to use this. But you can't say I didn't give you fair warning. Remember what I said to you that night in the Romney police station?"

The train was five minutes late getting into Grand Central, but five minutes more or less meant nothing to Andy. He had come without baggage because either he would see Bartley Ford tonight or he would go back and send his resignation in by mail. That much he had definitely decided. He owed it to Ford to make the effort to see him personally and explain that circumstances made it necessary for him to resign. If he saw Ford, fine. If he didn't, a letter would have to serve. He was leaving the Bridgehaven office not later than the first and it would be up to Ford to find some one to take his place.

He picked his way through the restless crowd to the telephone booths, thumbed the pages of the thick directory and found Ford's number. As his eyes scanned the address he realized that Ford's apartment was not more than five minutes' walk from Grand Central.

Should he telephone, Ford might offer some excuse or propose conference tomorrow. . . . The sooner this was over and he was out of New York, the better.

Slightly more than five minutes later, he stepped from the elevator, followed the operator's directions, and pushed the bell button. Just how he was going to tell Ford, he didn't know. The man had been decent enough to him and he hoped he would not make it difficult. After all, a fellow had a right to quit his job provided he gave reasonable notice.

The door opened and a Japanese servant stood there bowing. Andy gave him his name. It seemed a long wait before the door opened again, but when it did, there was action; the little Jap literally leaped into the hall, hissing in a strained whisper:

"The police—get police quick! Miss Cromwell has gun—will kill Mr. Ford. . . . the police in a great hurry!"

Andy caught his shoulders and shook him. "Wait a minute—what's this all about? Who's in there beside Ford and Miss Cromwell?"

Kato said, "Miss Wiley in there, also, but Miss Cromwell will kill Mr. Ford. You must get police!"

"Listen," Andy said, shaking a finger before the man's nose. "Never mind the police. Show me in."

The servant stepped inside, opened a door on the right and pointed down a short, narrow hall. Through the open doorway at the end of this hall came the sound of a woman's voice.

Andy closed the first entry door after him, moved softly along the hall and halted just inside the doorway that opened on Bartley Ford's big living room.

Laura was seated near a window on the opposite side of the big room. At least ten feet away Bart stood, a hand on the back of the settee. Facing them, her back to him, Andy saw the slim girl he had met at Dale Cromwell's. To all appearances, it was a quiet group engaged in idle conversation, but Andy knew the little Jap hadn't been so excited as that over nothing.

No one had noticed him as yet and he thought; I could walk up behind her and pin her arms to her sides, but one of the others would probably give me away before I got there.

He stepped into the room, smiling a greeting to all present. "Hope you don't mind my coming in," he said. "How are you, Laura, Mr. Ford?"

At the first sound of his voice, Hannah had wheeled, braced herself.

Andy said, "Oh, how do you do—Miss Cromwell, is it?" From a distance of perhaps 15 feet, he was gazing down the barrel of a revolver, but nothing in his face said that he saw it. But when he had reduced the distance by five feet, Hannah said:

"Stop. . . . If you take another step, I'll shoot."

"She's not joking, Andy," Laura said, quickly. "Do as she says. Hannah said, 'You're not supposed to be in this and you'd better not try to interfere.' She gestured. 'Get over there against the wall—and don't argue.'"

Andy thought: The girl is stark mad. The leaden eyes, the utter absence of nervous reaction testified to that. There was a deadly calm about her. A somnambulist about to kill in his sleep would look like that.

His gaze flicked over Laura's drawn, bloodless face, rested for an instant on Bartley Ford who stood transfixed, nails digging into the settee, came back to Hannah Cromwell as she spoke again:

"Are you going to do as I say—or not?"

Until this moment he hadn't considered any heroic defiance of her command but now he saw that, as they were, they formed a triangle about the girl which made it impossible for her to watch the three of them at once. It was an advantage they could not afford to lose.

But Hannah had uttered her last warning. A sharp edge ran along his nerves as he saw the muzzle of the gun rising, slowly. . . . Then, in the flick of an eye, the whole situation had changed. Laura was on her feet, lunging forward, screaming at the top of her voice, and Hannah was no longer pointing the gun at Andy but calmly drawing a bead on the marcasite pin on Laura's breast.

Andy had a fleeting impression of a rigid figure clinging to the settee. He saw it, noted it and would think of it again, but he would never be sure, for when Bartley Ford flashed across his vision, Andy was clear of the floor in a flying leap for Hannah Cromwell's legs.

The blast of the gun came a split second after Andy's shoulder crashed against Hannah Cromwell's knees. It had all happened so suddenly that all he knew was that Laura was marked for death. Diving head-first at the crazed girl's legs had been automatic.

The impact carried them beyond the settee and when Andy struck the floor, Hannah's head whipped forward and hit the wall with great force. Stunned for the moment, he lay there hugging the girl's limp legs until he felt a hand on his shoulder. Laura was kneeling beside him.

His brain cleared then. He sat up and ran his hands along Laura's arms as if to convince himself she was there in the flesh, alive and unharmed. He said, "Laura! . . . The full horror of what had happened in his eyes then. 'Laura!—she might have killed you! . . .'"

Laura was crying, but she was smiling, too. She had an arm about Andy's shoulder and now she pulled his head against her and pressed a wet cheek to his disheveled hair. "She might have killed us both—," she whispered—"but she didn't."

They were alone, those two. That Hannah was unconscious and even possibly dead. . . . that Bart, in a sort of helpless daze, still clung to the settee behind them were remote facts. What occupied their minds was the almost incredible realization that they were alive—and in love. It was old, their love, but now it surged through them with the beauty and wonder of another day, a day when there had been no Bartley Ford, no Hannah Cromwell in their lives, a day when there had been only themselves and Nina, who was just home from college, and a sweeping vista of happy years ahead.

It was Bart who brought them back to the present. He said, "We should do something about Hannah."

Laura said, quickly on her feet, "Call Dale, Bart. Andy, get some water. I said I will show you the kitchen."

Hannah was stunned and there was an ugly knob on her head, but apparently she was otherwise unhurt. The blow on the head had cleared her brain, however, for when she opened her eyes and saw Laura bending over her, recognition came and with it sanity and humiliation—and tears.

She didn't want to talk about the marijuana cigarettes, but Laura persisted and at last Hannah told her:

"A boy I know told me about them and gave me an address. At first I'd send them a check and the cigarettes would come by return mail. Then they began to hold me up. They said they would not only refuse to let me have any more but would tell father I was using them. . . . unless. . . ."

"Blackmail," Bart said. "As I suspected."

Hannah nodded. "At first they asked a hundred dollars; then it was two hundred, three hundred. Finally they telephoned and said they were sending Carozzi out and that unless I paid him a thousand dollars or gave him the equivalent in jewelry, something would happen to father. That was when I decided to kill myself and Carozzi at the same time. You know what happened."

Laura gripped Hannah's arms. "Are you going on like this, breaking your father's heart—ruining your own life?"

"No," Hannah said firmly. "So help me God, I'll never touch the stuff again. I—" Her voice died and her eyes fell. "I've said that so often before," she sighed despairingly. "You don't know what it does to you. It's horrible, horrible! . . . If only I had the courage to go away for a while, far away."

Dale came presently and it was when he and Hannah were saying good night that Laura said, "Just a moment, Hannah. . . ."

Just a moment, Hannah. . . . and took the girl's purse from her hands and removed the cigarette case.

Hannah almost snatched the purse from Laura's fingers, but she caught herself and waited, gravely, until Laura came back from the open window and returned the purse.

Dale said, "You're coming to visit us again soon, I hope."

"As soon as you come back," Laura smiled. "Hannah wants to get away from New York, Dale. Why don't you two go places and do things—for a year at least? There's nothing to keep you from it."

"No," Dale agreed, "there's nothing to keep us from taking a leisurely trip around the world, but I could never interest Hannah in the idea. I suppose," he said, "if we should go, you couldn't be persuaded to come along as our guest?"

Laura said, looking at Bart, "I'd like that, Dale, but—"

TAX REVISION PLAN MAY BE EXPECTED SOON, SAYS F. D. R.

President's Promise
Quickly Follows Report
That Income Returns
25 Per Cent Under 1938.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—(AP) A report from the treasury that first March income tax collections were 25 per cent under last year was followed quickly today by word from President Roosevelt that the administration's tax revision program could be expected soon.

The chief executive told his press conference that the tax study still was in the fact-finding stage, but that policy decisions would be made soon after figures become available on tax collections through March 15. These figures, he added, should be ready in about two weeks.

The treasury reported that income taxes actually deposited in the treasury in the first 15 days of March amounted to $132,709,201, which was about 25 per cent less than in the same period last year. If this percentage held up for the rest of the month, the treasury's income tax receipts for the month would be considerably larger than the $425,000,000 needed to fulfill budget estimates. In March, 1938, the treasury collected $723,000,000.

However, officials reported some evidence that numerous taxpayers paid up earlier in the month than they did last year and that the receipts at the treasury might not fully indicate receipts for the full month.

The success of this month's income tax collections, which are the first installment payments on 1938 income, are important to the tax revision program because they will indicate more clearly the effect of proposed changes in the tax laws.

The President reiterated that proposals so far studied were designed to thin the tax burden, as a whole, would pay neither more nor less taxes than they do now, even though the tax returns might be simpler.

TVA PROPERTY TAX VOTED BY SENATE

Bill Would Put Same Levy on Authority as on Private Utilities.

The senate yesterday passed two house bills calling upon the Tennessee Valley Authority to pay the same state, county and school district taxes as privately-owned utilities from which it purchases dams, plants and other properties. Representative R. T. Stiles, of Fannin county, said at least $73,740 in taxes would accrue annually to the state and counties as a result of the legislation. He listed $54,010 for Fannin county, $2,890 for Walker, $1,023 for Catoosa, $104 for Dade, $27 for Murray and $15,000 for the state for 1939.

"The Tennessee Power Company, which is negotiating sales of its properties to the TVA, had been paying approximately 50 per cent of all the taxes in my county," Stiles said. "It has paid 75 per cent of the taxes to support the high school at Blue Ridge and 75 per cent to support the Fannin County High School at Morganton."

"If we lose all of these taxes, it will ruin us. We'll all have to move out." He explained that many of the county's residents were owners of small homes and that the home-stead tax exemption left the county with only about $4,000,000 valuation for taxation, approximately half of which was made up by the power company holdings.

Alaskan Prospector Finds Missing Plane

JUNEAU, Alaska, March 17.—(AP)—Charles Ashby, a prospector, reported today he had found the wreckage of Pilot Alonzo Cope's plane, missing with five passengers since February 12. He said he saw two bodies inside the wreckage and assumed all in the party were dead.

Ashby said he found the wreckage in the woods opposite Grand Island, Glass peninsula.

Police Race to 'Murder' As Cat Upsets Goldfish

SAN JOSE, Cal., March 17.—(AP)—A crash! A shot in the dark! Screaming sirens—three victims. Reconstructing the crime, police learned:

William Terra's cat upset the goldfish bowl. Terra heard the crash, feared a burglar, fired in the dark. Neighbors, variously reporting an explosion and a murder, sent the squad cars.

The victims were the gold fish.

90 COUNTIES CLOSE DOORS OF SCHOOLS

will have to close two and one-half months early and that credits for a full year of work necessary for entrance in college cannot be obtained by students.

Other superintendents asserted seventh-grade students will not be eligible to enter high schools, and Ramsey added that it will mean the end of all schooling for many.

"The seventh graders can't go on into high school and they cannot afford to repeat the grade," he declared.

LIST OF COUNTIES CLOSING SCHOOLS

School systems in the following counties either have closed or will close within a week, because of lack of money, superintendents wired Ralph L. Ramsey, secretary of the Georgia Education Association, yesterday:

Atkinson, Bacon, Baker, Bartow, Ben Hill, Brantley, Brooks, Bryan, Bullock, Banks, Coffee, Clarke, Carroll, Catoosa, Cook, Coweta, Cobb, Chattooga, Calhoun, Clay, Columbia, Cherokee, Candler, Colquitt, Dooly, Decatur, Dodge, Dade, Early, Emanuel, Elbert, Echols, Evans, Fayette, Grady, Gordon, Gilmer, Habersham, Hall, Harris, Haralson, Henry, Jenkins, Jasper, Laurens, Long, Mitchell, Madison, Morgan, Murray, Miller, Oconee, Pickens, Pulaski, Polk, Peach, Putnam, Paulding, Rockdale, Spalding, Screven, Sumter, Schley, Stewart, Seminole, Toombs, Taliaferro, Treutlen, Tift, Terrell, Troup, Thomas, Upson, Union, Wayne, White, Wilkes, Walton, Whitfield, Walker, Ware, Webster and Washington.

declared. "They will stop school," he pointed out it will be a dead loss to the state on the cost of all the children who will have to repeat grades because of this term being cut short anywhere from two to three months.

In the majority of the schools closing, teachers' salaries are from one to two months in arrears, with no hope for payments for the remaining months, he said.

Here are a few sample telegrams sent in reply to Ramsey's question: Barrow county: "All county schools closing in three weeks. Pupils will lose one month of term."

Hall county: "Must close Friday. Shortens term three and one-half months."

Brooks county: "We may operate six months, but can pay for only five."

Polk county: "Shortens term two and one-half months."

Harris county: "Our schools ran full nine months for 20 years, but now we will have to close a month or six weeks early."

Legislature Adjournment.

The legislature, which automatically adjourns tonight, failed to pass requested revenue measures which would have enabled the schools to keep open the guaranteed seven months' term.

Briefly, the situation is this: The state has paid salaries for three and one-half months. It is obligated for a similar time to fill out the seven months' term. Due the schools to date is the sum of approximately $2,600,000. Year's salary, for the highest paid teachers is $560, tops of $80 per month. Some school authorities are threatening not to re-elect teachers unless they serve the remainder of the present term without being paid, it was reported.

Ramsey stressed the early closing of schools will cost the state more money next term, because those children who are able will have to repeat grades.

It was estimated unofficially that it costs approximately $100 to the school system for a child to repeat a grade. Few of the county systems have semester terms, as in city schools, and therefore children would have to repeat the entire grade, it was said.

Ramsey pointed out that the systems in the larger counties and most towns and cities will not have to close as will those in the smaller, poorer rural counties.

Wage-Hour Rules Will Be Placed On Home Piecework Production

Regulations Will Be in Effect for 6 Months, Starting April 1; Workers Will Be Required to Keep Own Books.

Regulations governing industrial home workers will go into effect April 1, Jack P. Lang, representative of the wage-hour division, said yesterday.

The new rules will be in effect for six months, Lang said, explaining that they were drawn to test the practicability of enforcing the provisions of the fair labor standards act as it now stands, with reference to this type of labor.

"Under the law all persons engaged in the production of goods for interstate commerce or in work necessary to the production of goods for interstate commerce must be paid at least 25 cents an hour, even though the work is done at home, and on a piecework basis," he said. The overtime provisions of the act are also effective, and workers will be required to keep individual books, showing in detail the number of hours they work on each lot of goods.

The regulations also require each employer who distributes work directly or indirectly to keep a record showing the name of each worker, home address, date of birth if under 19, and the name and address of each agent, distributor or contractor through whom the work is distributed.

The record also must show the date and hour on which the work is given out, the amount of work given, similar records on the return of the work, and other detail. Lang said handbooks and a complete list of the regulations may be obtained free from his office, 101 Marietta Street building.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS FETE PARENTS. HERE

27th Anniversary of Founding of Organization Is Observed.

Atlanta's Camp Fire Girls honored their parents last night at a twenty-seventh birthday party of the organization in Davidson-Paxon's tea room. The party was one of several thousand held throughout the world.

The girls presented a pageant, "Cavalade of America," directed by Mrs. Wellborn Ellis. Information on the 1939 activities was presented to guests in booklet form.

Camp Fire Girls in costumes representing the 48 states each at the time of admittance, gave brief sketches. This was the Atlanta organization's part of the theme "Americana," which will be expressed next week by Camp Fire clubs all over the nation.

Mrs. James C. Malone, president and chairman of the local board, presided. In front of Mrs. Malone at the guests of honor table the Camp Fire Girls had a large birthday cake, with 27 candles.

Registration for summer camp was held after the program. Motion pictures of the 1938 season at Camp Toccoa were shown at that time.

According to the statistics released last night, the 1938 membership reached a peak of 994 girls. Civic services during the year included contributions to the Salvation Army Toy Store, the Toy Lending Library, Grady hospital, Hillside Cottages, Veterans' hospital and improvements at Camp Toccoa.

More than 200 parents attended.

COBB'S CONTEMPT CITATION UPHELD

Court of Appeals Backs
Woodrum for Jailing Savannah Attorney.

The jailing and fining of Albert L. Cobb, Savannah lawyer, on a contempt of court charge by Judge W. W. Woodrum, of the Ogeechee circuit, was upheld yesterday by the Georgia court of appeals.

Cobb, in a book written about the Charlie Daughtry murder case, made references to Judge Woodrum, who cited him for contempt, fined him $200 and sentenced him to jail for 20 days.

The Savannah lawyer was indicted as an accessory in the Daughtry case but was acquitted by a jury. A resolution backed by Cobb to impeach Judge Woodrum is pending in the Georgia legislature.

Judge Jule Fenton, who wrote the opinion for the court of appeals, said Cobb did not deny the charge against him and submitted no evidence, but relied and insisted upon a plea in bar, contending Judge Woodrum was disqualified from trying the Daughtry case because of relation to one of the prosecutors, and therefore also was disqualified from trying the contempt charge.

Army Divorce Bill Passes Legislature

The Georgia legislature yesterday completed action on a bill to permit residents of any United States army post or military reservation in Georgia to sue for divorce in any adjacent county if they had resided at the post one year before filing the petition.

Under present law such residents have to go back to their homes to sue for divorce, it was explained.

Representative Wohlwender, of Muscogee, introduced the measure.

326 Bowlers Await 7th Constitution Doubles Tourney Today

SAVANNAH, March 17.—Manager Paul Richards, who has worked himself down to the point where he could play the "thin man" on a moment's notice, leaves the impression that he intends to catch most of the Cracker games this summer.

There are a couple of reasons why. For one thing, the Crackers have an unusual number of young pitchers. Outside of Clyde Smoll and Bobby Durham, the boys who will hold forth on the hillcock are all rookies. This goes for Mack Stewart, who won a flock of games for the Macon Peaches last season.

Richards unquestionably is one of the finest handlers of pitchers in the minor leagues. He knows when to leave them in there and when to take them out. And he's better able to tell how a pitcher is doing when he is in the game.

It may be that another reason for Richards wanting to play as much as possible is because of the large number of young players as a whole. A balance of experience will be needed. Funny thing, it would be entirely possible for the Crackers to go into any ball game with seven rookies and only two class men on the field. Fact is, it's not only possible, but probably will happen many times during the summer.

It would work like this:

There would be Dewey Williams, a fine young catcher in his own right, behind the plate. Any one of the young pitchers could be on the mound. The rest of the lineup would be Bolling at first, Anderson at second, Peters on short, Rubeling at third, Mailho in left, Rucker in center and Burge or Oetting in right. The only class men would be Peters and Mailho.

The most class men the Crackers ever could get on the field at one time would be five. That would be with Richards catching, Durham or Smoll pitching and Mauldin playing in one of the outfield positions with Mailho.

As things are shaping up, it seems very likely the Crackers will enter the most games with just three class men in the lineup. This largely depends, of course, on what Rucker does when he recovers his strength. If Mauldin is used regularly, then the number of class men will be increased from three to four.

It doesn't take any great amount of research or checking to prove that this is the youngest club in Southern league history—yesterday and more inexperienced even than the Cracker "kid team" of 1919.

HE'S GOOD WITH YOUNGSTERS.

The Crackers have a group of high-class rookies, but the fact remains they haven't been touched by the magic wand of Southern league experience, except in a few cases. Luman Harris and Larry Miller, Dewey Williams and Jack Bolling have been around.

Rubeling, Anderson, Burge and even Rucker may be classed, really, as untried in A-1 competition. Johnston, Stein and Robinson have had a short fling at it. In fact, Johnston pitched a one-hitter against Chattanooga last season, but the former Auburn athlete hasn't been tested over a stretch of games.

There is no question about it. It will be much tougher for Manager Richards to win with this club, regardless of its speed, than it was for him to win everything in sight with last year's team. He might find it easier to do if he had a Sunkel around, but to date no successor to Silent Tom has appeared.

A greatly encouraging factor about the Cracker outlook is, however, the way Richards has with young talent. Richards inspires confidence in young players and they seem to develop faster under his guidance. In this respect, he is very likely the greatest manager Atlanta's Crackers ever had.

Bert Niehoff was a great manager, sure, but he achieved his success almost entirely with tried and true veterans. Charlie Frank may rank along with Richards as a handler of youngsters. He won a pennant with the kid team. Billy Smith was a leader of first ranking. Anyway, Richards is one of the best.

He'll give Atlanta a team this summer that will resemble a college club in spirit and there is no reason to believe it won't be recognized as a good pro club in performance.

HE'LL DO IN A PINCH.

If it should happen that Manager Richards changes his mind about catching so much, he could do a lot worse than rely on Dewey Williams.

As I recall it, Dewey was the champion pinch-hitter of the Southern league last season. They're still trying to get him out. He appeared five times in this role and came up with five straight bullets.

As a matter of fact, at the time Dewey was forced to leave the club because of appendix trouble he was leading the Southern league in hitting. He returned too quickly and then had a siege of sickness, but when he got straightened out his worth as a pinch-hitter was unquestionable.

Manager Richards will be able to tell a little bit more about things when the Crackers square off against the Indians Sunday in the first of several exhibition games here.

SHAMROCKS, AND NO BLARNEY.

Sure, and 'twas quite a party the Hibernians had on St. Pat.

GRIFFIN TO HOLD PREP GOLF MEET FRIDAY, APRIL 21

Tech High, Boys' High Are Among Entrants; Barnes Won in '38.

GRIFFIN, Ga., March 17.—Representatives of at least 14 leading schools will tee off here Friday morning, April 21, in the second annual Georgia High School Invitation golf tournament. Ten schools participated over the municipal course last year.

Sponsored by the Griffin and Spalding County Chamber of Commerce, T. G. Dulin is chairman of the tournament committee.

Schools with entries already in are Tech High and Boys' High of Atlanta, Lanier of Macon, G. M. A. of College Park, Russell of East Point, Gordon College of Barnesville, Darlington of Rome, Riverside of Gainesville, Columbus, LaGrange, Savannah, R. E. Lee of Thomaston and Griffin High.

Luke Barnes, of Tech High, won the low medal honors last year, then went on to win the state championship by defeating his brother, Ralph, in the finals.

Individual and team medals and cups will be presented.

Cary Ritch, municipal pro, is in charge of the course.

SMITHIES LOSE TO DARLINGTON

ROME, Ga., March 17.—Darlington school's superb swimmers downed the powerful Tech High team from Atlanta here today, 39-27, as the Tigers swept on toward a southern title.

Denham Hammond, of Atlanta, 15-year-old ace of the Darlington squad, broke the mid-south interscholastic record when he won the 100-yard backstroke in 1:09.3. Guy Mankin was another Atlantan to cop a first place for Darlington in the 100-yard breast stroke.

Wilson and Cogburn won individual firsts for Tech High in the 220-free style and in the diving, respectively. Tech High won the medley relay while Darlington ran away with the free style relays. Hays, of Darlington, won the 40-yard dash.

Denson, Darlington, won the 100-yard free style. Two other Atlantans, Drew Davidson and Bob Murphy were on the Tiger winning crew.

Darlington, coached by Ish Williams, former Olympic star, has previously defeated Georgia Tech and Emory freshmen this season.

THEY HOPE TO WIN PIN MEDALS

The Constitution's great doubles bowling tournament, drawing a record United States entry for a one-day meet, opens this morning with every team accorded an equal chance, since the annual event is staged on a handicap basis. Tommie Carter (left) and Pat Cox will form a combine which might prove a factor in the final results. They are holding the attractive medals which go to the winners in the women's competition.

BOBBY BEERS RETURNS PUNT AS TECH CLOSES SPRING DRILLS

Bobby Beers, speedy little tailback, is shown above about to be stopped by three tacklers after returning a punt 25 yards yesterday as the Georgia Techs closed spring football practice with a game scrimmage. The varsity team whipped the reserves, 18-6, after a hard battle. Dick Bates, star of the subs, may be seen on the left closing in on Beers.

Gordon Smith Wins Biloxi Medal Honors

BILOXI, Miss., March 17.—(AP) Gordon Smith, of Mobile, Ala., won medalist honors today in the third annual Biloxi open amateur golf tournament with a score of 70, even par.

Smith, Alabama state champion, shot one under par on the first nine and was one over coming in. Stanton Patterson, of Natchez, Miss., member of the five-man Louisiana State University team, was second with a 72. John E. Breaux Jr., of Biloxi, and Henry Castillo, of Tampa, Fla., another L. S. U. student, had 74s.

Tech Varsity Beats Reserves in Last Drill

Dick Bates, Sub Back, Stars But His Side Loses, 18 to 6.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Mack Tharpe and Bobby Dodd's Green eleven came to life after being outplayed by the blue-clad reserves for the first hour, and pounded out a 18-6 victory yesterday as Georgia Tech closed spring football practice with a game scrimmage.

The reserves of Roy McArthur, led by a pass-throwing sophomore. Dead-eye Dick Bates, clearly outplayed the regulars for the first hour but finally succumbed to the greater reserve strength of the Greens. Bates was the outstanding back on the field. Time and again he tossed perfect passes to teammates to keep the varsity goal line always in danger.

And it was Bates' excellent running which gave the blues their lone touchdown although it was Bobbie Hightower who finally punched the ball over for the score. The Blues recovered a Green fumble on the 20-yard line and Bates drove it to the one by hard smashes into the line.

FIVE WEEKS DRILLS.

The game climaxed five weeks of spring drills in which several sophomores were the standouts. The practice was originally scheduled for six weeks but because of the Techs' December trip to California, Coach Bill Alexander decided enough was enough and called the whole thing off.

The Green team was playing without the services of several veteran backs who were given the last few days of practice off.

Little Johnny Bosch, sophomore ace, was the star of the Green victory but had to share honors with two other first-year men, Ralph Plaster and Bobby Pair.

The first score of the game came on a Green drive of 50 yards. It was climaxed by a touchdown pass of 14 yards from Bosch to Pair. The Greens had only started for they were given the ball on the Blue 20 and marched 80 yards to another score before McArthur could rally his forces. Extra points were not tried.

Bosch passed three times and Plaster broke through from the 20 for the second touchdown.

BLUES SCORE The Blues scored next and the final marker came when Buck Shaw put the ball on the 2-yard line with a 20-yard run. Roy Go-

Werber Will Report To Reds Today

COLLEGE PARK, Md., March 17.—(AP)—Bill Werber, third baseman purchased by the Cincinnati Reds from the Philadelphia Athletics for a reported $25,000, plans to join the Reds at training camp tomorrow.

The former Georgetown law student didn't disclose what salary he had been offered but said: "I got what I wanted—everything is satisfactorily arranged."

The fleetfooted infielder, who lives here, has been working out with the University of Maryland nine.

M'LAUGHLIN WINS.

ree battered it over. Grover Wilkins, Blue guard, was the only casualty of the terrific scrimmage. He received a nasty cut under one eye which required several stitches.

The Tech team of next year will no doubt be stronger than the 1938 eleven. Offensively, the Jack-ets appear stronger than at any time in the last few years. The defense may be a little weaker than last year but a better attack will more than make up for it.

The guard problem has been acute during the spring but is expected to improve with the return of Hawk Cavette, who suffered a broken arm.

In addition to Bosch, Pair and Plaster, other sophomores expected to see plenty of service next season are George Webb, Jim Wright, Albert Muert, Hal Lamb, Carlton Lee and Bates.

A large crowd witnessed yesterday's final drill.

ENTRY LIST HELD OPEN UNTIL 1:30 THIS AFTERNOON

Handicaps Give Each Team Equal Chance; Start at 11:30 A.M.

The seventh annual Atlanta Constitution "St. Patrick's Day" Doubles Bowling Tournament will have its official opening on the downtown alleys at 11:30 o'clock this morning, with 326 men and women scheduled to roll their games at one of the four designated hours of competition.

With an increase of 38 doubles teams over last year's record mark of 125 pairs of bowlers, a new national and local entry list record for a doubles bowling meet has been established.

A great array of pinsmashers of all averages, ranging from 60 to 120, will be included in the field of men and women who will attempt to win the titles and gold medals that will be awarded the winners in the separate men's and women's divisions.

The handicap system, which will be in vogue during the competition, puts every participant on an even basis. It is only a question of getting those fingers "hot" and putting the ball in the "pocket" for strikes and spare breaks.

Nearly every previous pair of winners has taken part in this annual doubles classic is enrolled to make another bid for a championship. George (Tubby) Small and John Conyers, first winners of the contest back in 1933, were among the first to sign this season, making seven consecutive years that they have bowled together in the "St. Patrick's Day" doubles meet.

LAST YEAR WINNERS.

O. A. Nix and Ben Hogue, winners of the men's event last year, and Elizabeth Folk and Grace Mize, who won the women's title last season, will be endeavoring to annex additional titles as they bowl in defense of their last year's victories.

A colorful group of bowlers, with many pairs of brothers, father and son, mother and daughter, sisters and out-of-town players will be included in the rank and file of pinmen who will have possession of most of the alleys during the afternoon and evening as they "fire away" at the duck-pins for strikes and spares.

The entry list will remain open until the afternoon block has started so it is not too late to file your entry if you have not already attended to this detail.

Walter E. Lawson and A. J. Sosong will be the top average pair of the men's group who will attempt to overcome the handicaps that are given the other pairs of bowlers. Dot Morris and Bebe Bangert will have the top average for the women rolling in he met.

LATE ENTRANTS.

Some of the last-minute entries filed Friday evening included E. L. Markert and Julian Bass, J. A. Burns and E. E. Fuller, Bill Dabney and Jack Burgess, John Van Fleet and Dan (Tootsie) Zoll, Harry Hunter and John Feltham, Tom Pope and Bob Hall, Mrs. Hunter and Mrs. L. Feltham, Reuben Pickett and Alva Stewart, R. Smith and F. Jackson, O. Heimerich and T. Chandler.

Remember the games may be rolled on either the uptown Lucky Strike or downtown Bick's Bowling Center alleys at either 11:30

FRITZ OETTING BATS CLEAN-UP IN FIRST CLASH

Peters' Sprained Thumb
May Keep Him Out;
Lipscomb Catches.

By ROY WHITE.

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 17.—A long skull drill, specializing on base running, quick starting from each base and close plays at third and home plate, featured today's Cracker spring practice. It was the 42nd drill without a break, under perfect weather conditions.

A long batting drill was held simultaneously with the specialties, and again every pitcher in camp with the exception of Mack Stewart, the young Macon right-hander, was given a chance in the box. That first bit of soreness of the spring drills, prevented Stewart from taking his turn, though he appeared ready to go. Al Rubeling again was in no condition to throw to first base, due to a sore arm, but he took his regular turn at batting and participated in a long fielding drill.

TO JOIN MERIDIAN.
Charlie Fulton, the young outfielder from the Union Bag team of Savannah, left camp late yesterday for Rome, Ga., where he will spend a few days with relatives before joining Meridian's spring training next week. Winslow Stroupe also was among the missing, having left at midnight last night for his home at Gastonia, N. C. He was declared a free agent Monday by baseball Commissioner Landis.

Jim Marsh, the big rookie right-hander from Chicago, with the Cordele club last year, has improved so much from a wisdom tooth infection that Manager Paul Richards has announced he will open Sunday's game with Savannah.

Mike Petroskey, the big Georgetown University rookie with the Crackers late last season, will be on deck with Leslie Cox, a Hapeville, Ga., boy in the hole, each will work three innings.

Dewey Williams will start the game catching, with Nig Lipscomb and Larry Smith ready to work three innings each.

It will be Nig's first attempt at catching.

Fritz Oetting, whose great hitting was a big factor in the Crackers' winning the Southern pennant in the latter stages of the race, has been given the clean-up position in Sunday's batting order.

MAULDIN AT SHORT.
Rube Peters, who sprained a thumb on his throwing hand, will be missing from the opening lineup, Marshall Mauldin taking his place at short. Peters has participated in both hitting and infield practices, but Manager Richards is taking no chance with him in a game this early in the season.

An opening lineup of Mauldin, shortstop; Alf Anderson, second base; Bolling, first base; Oetting,

LANIER WINS 1ST BUT LOSES IN 2D

DURHAM, N. C., March 17.—(AP) Mossville, Miss., High school defeated a hard-fighting Greenville, S. C., High school team, 40-37, today in the first game of the first annual Duke-Durham high school basketball tournament.

Two extra periods were necessary to decide the issue.

Durham High, winner of the recent South Atlantic tournament at Washington and Lee University, advanced to the semi-finals by drubbing the Petersburg, Va., entry, 43 to 25, and in the final game of the morning, Lanier High, Macon, Ga., eliminated Central, of Charlotte, 50 to 35.

In a semi-final game, Eastern High, of Washington, defeated Lanier, 35 to 18.

left field; Burge, right field; Rubeling, third base; Mailho, center field; Williams, catcher, and March, pitching, has been announced by Richards.

Should Rubeling's arm fail to show enough improvement, Mauldin will most likely be shifted to third and Brewster to short, though Manager Richards has made no announcement as yet. He may let Rubeling stay at the post, despite his inability to throw to first with any speed.

Only a week of practice and an abundance of pitching talent on hand has left Manager Chick Autry with a big problem of selecting three pitchers Sunday.

'No Fish in This Lake; But Lamb Caught Some

Famous Angler Performs Here Sunday in Free Exhibition at Piedmont Park.

When Jack Lamb, internationally known fisherman, author and writer, puts on his free casting demonstration on the softball field in Piedmont park at 3 p. m. Sunday, the amateur fishermen of this section will have an opportunity to gain valuable information from a man who has literally spent his entire life on streams and lakes.

Starting as an Oklahoma country boy in 1910, Lamb actually fished his way to a national reputation. For 17 years, a part of every day found him whipping flies on some stream, and it does not take any stretch of the imagination to realize how much of the real science of angling a man can learn in such an intense study of game fish and fishing methods over this long period of time.

Reputations are not built on bunk, and Jack Lamb has what it takes to uphold his reputation. Last year a group of Texas newspapermen learned that Lamb would fish in a certain creek, and when he arrived at the scene, lo, there were 11 newspapermen awaiting him.

"IF YOU'RE GOOD."

"We've printed reams about your fishing," the spokesman said, "but we have never seen you catch a fish. If you are as good as they say you are, you'll catch a mess of fish for use."

That was a big order, but Lamb limbered his trusty fly-rod and set out. Soon he was doing his stuff, and one by one the newspapermen turned homeward with a big string of fish. Lamb caught 148 bass in five hours, as they looked on with bulging eyes.

Last August Lamb was fishing for trout in the great Laurentide country of northern Quebec. He came upon two anglers who were berating the lake and the scarcity of fish. One of them told Lamb that he had been fishing a certain spot for two hours without a strike, and did not believe there were any trout in the lake. Lamb motioned his Canadian guide into the spot and caught 21 trout on consecutive casts! The astounded anglers, amazed at his uncanny fish-catching ability, grabbed their motion picture cameras and began shooting pictures. In the excitement, the camera was run backwards, and when the film was finally finished, it showed Lamb putting trout into the lake instead of taking them out!

PROOF AT OPELIKA.
But getting closer to our locale, Lamb was invited to Opelika, Ala., a few years ago by a group of sportsmen. One of the more dubious members of the group made the remark that Lamb was either the greatest fisherman in the world or the greatest liar, judging from what they had heard and read.

Nothing would satisfy these men but that Lamb give an actual demonstration of his fishing ability. They did not want to see him perform on dry land. They were genuine, dyed-in-the-wool Doubting Thomases. With a group of these men, Lamb proceeded to a lake where, according to local anglers, two or three fish a week would be considered a good catch.

Lamb unleashed his fishing genius again and landed 14 nice bass in one hour! Since that time, Lamb has had many friends and followers in Opelika.

We could go on and on, relating incidents like this which come to Jack Lamb every day. But as we said before, he has what it takes, and can always produce when put to the test. It is this quality that makes him outstanding.

'Gator Swimmers Win; To Meet Tech

GAINESVILLE, Fla., March 17.—(AP)—Winning seven of eight events, Florida's undefeated swimming team trounced the University of Tennessee, 54-14, here today in an intercollegiate dual meet.

The 'Gators meet Georgia Tech here tomorrow in their last home stand.

Tennessee's only first place was in diving.

This win was Florida's 35th consecutive dual meet victory since 1934.

Hartnett and Dean Qualify as Actors

HOLLYWOOD, March 17.—(AP) Manager Gabby Hartnett and his pitching ace, Dizzy Dean, qualified as actors today by paying $27 each as union dues to the American Federation of Radio Artists.

It seems that Diz and Gabby got $1,000 each for appearing on Rudy Vallee's air program, but they had to climb down the dues before the union would let them speak their lines.

Gabby played the choice piece in a radio skit, "In the Fold," in which he was Bill Wallace, hard-bitten baseball manager. Diz was McGuire, star pitcher who was holding out for $50,000 and settled for $25,000. That was right down Diz's alley.

GULDAHL, BRIGHT WIN IN BEST BALL

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 17.—(AP)—Ralph Guldahl, the national open champion who has blossomed out lately as a crack match play golfer, piloted his team today into the semi-finals of the amateur-professional best ball tournament.

He and Morton Bright, Daytona Beach amateur, won on the 21st hole over Harry Cooper, of Chicago, Mass., and William Holt, of Syracuse, N. Y., when Guldahl poked his second shot dead to the pin for a birdie three.

Their opponents tomorrow will be the surprising all-Michigan combination of Pro Marvin Stahl, Lansing, and Amateur Chick Harbert, Battle Creek.

Still going strong after winning the medal and dumping two former winners, Stahl and Harbert defeated Byron Nelson, of Reading, Pa., and John Livingston, of St. Augustine, this afternoon 2 and 1.

The other 36-hole match tomorrow will pit Denny Shute, of West Newton, Mass., and Bill Stark, of Jacksonville, against Jack Grout, of Hershey, Pa., and Maynard Ramsey, of Tampa.

Ramsey duplicated Guldahl's feat on the third extra hole to give his team victory over Mike Turnesa, of Elmsford, N. Y., and Horace Williams, of St. Petersburg.

A comfortable 4 and 3 decision over Johnny Revolta, of Evanston, Ill., and Wilfred Wehrle, of Racine, Wis., moved Shute and Stark through the quarter finals.

Jacket Rifle Team Opposes N. C. State

The undefeated rifle team of Georgia Tech will meet the undefeated North Carolina State marksmen, Fourth Corps Area champions, in a match this afternoon at Tech.

Shooting for the Yellow Jackets in this shoulder-to-shoulder five-man team contest will be Captain Lee Sanderson, Dye, Haggeny and Raetzig. Each shooter will fire 10 shots from four positions—sitting, standing, kneeling and prone.

Hal Drake, N. R. A. official, will be in charge.

Obie Walker Beats Haynes Via Decision

MIAMI, Fla., March 17.—(AP)—Obie "Bearcat" Walker, 232-pound Atlanta negro, won an unpopular 15-round decision over Leroy Haynes, of Philadelphia, last night.

It took the judges 10 minutes to decide the winner and their announcement was greeted by a wave of boos from some among the 3,500 spectators.

The early rounds were slow but gradually the fighters unlimbered their heavy artillery and had the fans yelling. There were no knockdowns but the Philadelphia negro staggered Walker near the end of the last round with a hard right flush to the chin.

Haynes scaled 195 pounds.

Great Yale Back of '19 Visits Here

Jim Braden Made Camp
Team; 'Education' Was Stolen, Found.

By TOM McRAE.

James Braden, a Walter Camp all-America selection, soldier, former oil fields worker in Mexico and ex-Chicago newspaperman, was in town yesterday.

He is now employed by an advertising agency and his work carries him all over the country.

Veteran football fans who saw him play at Yale will note a change in figure. In college he weighed 200, well distributed over a stocky frame—Jim Braden referred to his physique as that of a hod carrier. Now Jim weighs 230. He patted his stomach affectionately and explained the extra 30 pounds:

"Too many luncheons and banquets."

In 1917 Braden was a junior—the best year in college he believes. That year spring was very lovely, he recalled. As if someone had denied this, Jim said, "Spring can be lovely, even in New Haven, Conn." The Yale athlete, out for track, lolled about the athletic field and talked to negro janitors.

FIRST TO WAR.

War came that spring and in accord with an old Yale tradition, the juniors enlisted first. He was in one of the first training camps organized and one of the first American to go under fire. After it was over and he returned, he rick's night. For years and years this old Irish society has attracted sons and descendants of Ould Erin sod.

It is a gala affair which calls for full dress. Shamrocks are prominent and, in the absence of a blarney stone, they have been known to kiss Bill Daly instead.

Irishmen from all over the state make it a point to be in Savannah on St. Patrick's Day and stay over for the Hibernian Club's party. In ratio, there are more Irishmen per square yard here than there are cattle in the state of Texas. And it has been said that's a cow country.

went back to Yale, "the only smart thing I ever did."

In 1919 Walter Camp honored Braden by choosing him all-America fullback. Braden played for W. & J. one year before entering Yale. W. & J. that season scored more points and allowed less than any other major eleven.

A restlessness got from war caused him to accept a position in the oil fields of Mexico, upon graduation.

He returned from Mexico by boat two years later. On this trip were stolen his watch and chain, on which were two gold footballs, two gold track charms, (he was an excellent shooter and discus thrower) and a knife won at the Wanamaker games. These he refers to as his "college education, all I have to show for the four years."

AFTER 18 YEARS.

Last fall, after 18 years, he recovered his "college education." A Texan bought the watch and chain in a Mexican trinket shop. The Texan finally got in touch with Braden after all these years.

Braden joined the Chicago Daily News sports staff in 1923 and was with the paper about 13 years. The custom was not to give a man a by-line until he had been on a year. Braden got one after a week. He knew the outstanding figures in sports in the midwest, two of the best known perhaps are Knute Rockne and Red Grange.

Braden believes Tom Harmon, the sensational Michigan sophomore, will become a really great player. "Writers always compare some runner to Grange, but Harmon is the first player I have ever seen that runs as Grange did."

NOTHING NEW.

When the Notre Dame eleven were best in the nation, Braden once asked the famous coach to define his system. The Notre Dame coach replied: "Why there's nothing new about it, Jim. It's simply Percy Haughton's style of play plus forward passing."

Of the trends in football the last 20 years, the increase in the use of the lateral is the most significant, he believes. He thinks under present rules the chance of an upset is considerably greater than when he played.

He is one of the few veteran players who believes the best teams now could beat the best teams of two decades ago.

ANSLEY QUALIFYING.

Tommy Wilson, Ansley Park pro, announced yesterday that qualifying for the club's best ball tourney will start today and will last through Sunday, March 26.

We Invite You To Try Caravan

PT. 60c, PT. $1.15, QT. $2.15

TRY a pint today—that's all we ask. We believe you'll agree with thousands of wise buyers that Caravan's extra-mildness makes it a better-tasting whiskey. It's milder because it's blended exclusively from costly light-bodied whiskeys carefully made by the World's largest distillery at Peoria. These are combined by Master Blenders to give Caravan unusually satisfying flavor and bouquet. Caravan "tastes" quality, "looks" quality, but it's not high-priced. Serve it with pride and save the difference!

Sons and Daughters of Pilgrims Hold Annual Meeting in Atlanta

The annual meeting of Georgia branch of Sons and Daughters of Pilgrims was held during a brilliant dinner given at the Atlanta Woman's Club last Monday.

The assembly stood at attention as the colors were advanced, the United States flag being borne by Griffin Carmichael and the Georgia flag by George Finch Jr., who served as colorbearers and special escort to the state governor, Mrs. S. M. Page Rees.

Mrs. Rees welcomed members and their guests and paid tribute to the late national governor general, Mrs. Bennett A. Wilson, of New Jersey. Mrs. Wilson had shown much interest in Georgia branch of the society and frequently expressed pride in its accomplishments during the past three years, Georgia having received national recognition for the most outstanding historical work and for the largest increase in memberships.

A short memorial service was held for the late Mrs. William Weldon Starke, of Commerce, Ga. Mrs. Starke had served the Georgia branch as elder during the administration just prior to the present. A poem, written by Elizabeth Fitten Goldsmith, and read by Mrs. Erwin N. Kinne, one of the state officers, was part of the tribute.

Reports of registrar and treasurer showed 27 new members admitted during the fiscal year. Several revisions of by-laws recommended by the executive board were adopted, creating a new acceptability committee and relating to admission of new members.

A letter from Captain Reed M. Pawell, commandant of naval unit at Georgia Tech, was read confirming arrangements relative to presentation of a gold medal by Georgia branch of Sons and Daughters of Pilgrims to a student of naval R. O. T. C. The presentation of this medal will be made on honor day in May at Grant field. Delegates to national court to be held in Washington, D. C., on April 22 are state governor, Mrs. Page Rees; the national deputy governor for Georgia, Miss Annie Laurie Hill; Mrs. Hayden Crosby Shover, Judge Augustus M. Roan, and Miss Byrd Blankenship.

Georgia branch voted to present a United States flag to a county school to be selected by a committee with Mrs. Rees as chairman. Charles Elliott, of the Georgia state parks department, was introduced by Mrs. Rees. Mr. Elliott's address included a brief history of the national and state parks whose creation was inspired by Galen W. Clarke. Mr. Elliott urged conservation of state forests, and the creation of additional state parks, and showed a moving picture in a technical color of Georgia's scenic spots preserved in the present parks.

A musical program was presented by Miss Lois Biles with Mrs. Goodwin Swartz, of Marietta, Ga., as soloist.

The decorations on the banquet table were revisions of by-laws recommended by the executive board were adopted, creating a new acceptability committee and

IF YOU FEEL SUNK Read this and cheer up

Are you so blue that life is no longer worth living? Do you cry easily? Do you feel low, mean, depressed—just absolutely SUNK? Then here's good news for you in case you need a good general system tonic. The famous Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Let its wholesome herbs and roots help Nature build up more physical resistance and tone up your system, so that it can more easily throw off the "blues" and give more energy to enjoy life.

MILLIONS of women have depended upon this Compound and have passed the word along to friends and neighbors, and to their children.

Why not take Pinkham's Compound and go "smiling thru"?

Spring GARDENING by Fletcher Pearson Croome

Spring is here again, the garden school cannot be far away. We have had an especially nice winter and the outlook just now is for lovely spring gardens. This well, for already four major flower shows have been arranged, and the tulip show on April 10 and 11, "The Iris show on April 24 and 25, "Flowers on Parade" by the garden division of the Fifth District of Federated Clubs May 2. This is followed by our annual rose show at the Biltmore, more sponsored by the Druid Hills Garden Club.

My theme at the garden school this spring will be "The Perennial Border." This suggests to you many flowers, flowers that have been planned to follow a pattern, to bloom at certain times, to have color harmony, to make a picture. All this and more. So I have decided to take a catalogue of flowers for the next ten days and point out to you flowers which for one reason or another I think are interesting and worthwhile. I want you to be prepared to follow with me during my talks on the perennial border, to feel that these are old friends which we are placing according to a thoughtful plan.

I am sure that all of you have already spent much time this past winter studying seed catalogues, making out lists, and probably many of you have already planted some of these seeds. Most of us begin with ageratum, which we all know to be a most satisfactory annual of a beautiful shade of blue, though it does come in a bluish white also. We know that once we have had this plant in our garden it will recede from year to year and must be constantly pulled out. However, the dwarf form is very hard to get from seed and it is best to buy plants of this in early spring, taking cuttings to root until you have a supply.

Attend The Constitution's spring garden school March 28, 29, 30 at the Atlanta Woman's Club.

What Will Posterity Think When Sarong and Photos Are Unearthed?

MY DAY Water Supply Concerns People of Valley

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

HARLINGEN, Texas—Yesterday the mayor of Edinburg corrected my first impression of the town—he had come to the town 15 years ago, but it became an incorporated town some 18 years ago. Even at that, it is remarkable to see how it has grown in a short time. Soon after our arrival it began to rain, a thing which seems most desirable to everyone in the valley.

Our hosts were polite enough to say that they regretted that we would have to drive about and see the countryside in the rain, but it was quite evident that they were delighted and hoped it would continue to rain steadily for some days. On everyone's lips you heard the same phrase: "A million dollar rain," in a kind of hopeful tone, and you could not help praying with them that this might be the case.

During our drive, we crossed into Mexico where we were most kindly and hospitably received by the officers in charge of what will be some day, be an army post. The quarters are being built now and are along the most modernistic lines. This is a curious contrast with some of the old buildings in the little town, and with the huts which serve as dwelling places for the poor families on its outskirts and in the rural districts. However, developments seem to be coming all along the river, for roads are being built, and nothing like paved roads changes the countryside as we have long since discovered in the United States.

Then we visited the Engleman Gardens, a ranch of 11,000 acres. From a tower, we had a view of the fields and the citrus groves, a really beautiful sight. I have never seen a packing plant in operation before and was much interested in seeing the fruit washed, stamped and packed.

The experiment station at Weslaco, one of the towns we drove through, has been developing various new uses for the products of the valley. Among other things, from the hulls of citrus fruits, they are making cattle food which they believe will be extremely valuable.

We drove along to Harlingen this morning, paralleling the line of the Southern Pacific railway. The Missouri Pacific railway was in this territory at an earlier period, but since 1927 this new line is opening up new country. During the winter and spring, they ship great quantities of vegetables and fruits from this section.

The greater part of their water comes from the Rio Grande, which seems to be a temperamental river, for it changes its course quite frequently. There are vast irrigation projects because the normal rainfall is insufficient, so the people of the valley are concerned about their water supply from the Rio Grande.

In this big country of ours we have to see things with our own eyes to realize the things which may spell ruin to the entire section and yet which mean so little in other parts of the country.

Doctor Recommends Tea Leaf Poultice for Burns, Scalds

By Dr. William Brady.

Popular magazines some time ago described in the usual extravagant fashion the alleged discovery by a factory physician of the efficacy of tannic acid treatment for burns.

The Pittsburgh Medical Review, May, 1890, contained a report of the effects of such treatment of burns. It gave simple instructions, as follows:

A 5 per cent solution is squeezed from a sponge over the denuded (raw) surface, which is then dressed with soft ointment (say soft paraffin, or as it is more commonly called in this country, petrolatum or petroleum jelly) with or without tannin. Pain immediately abates, and the healing process is wonderfully rapid. The tannin (tannic acid) solution must, of course, be freshly applied, as often as dressing is renewed.

To that I would add the advice to renew or disturb the dressing only when discomfort demands it. Once a burn, wound or raw surface is clean and in condition to heal, the less frequently it is dressed or handled or disturbed or moved unnecessarily, the more satisfactorily will it heal. Tannin or tannic acid is a strongly astringent brownish white shiny substance obtained from nutgalls, sumac and tea. Coffee contains less tannic than tea.

Tea or coffee made without boiling contains less tannin than do the same beverages after boiling. Moreover boiling drives off the pleasant aroma of coffee or of tea. That's why I say it is a crime to boil the coffee, and when you smell coffee before you get down to breakfast, the cook should be sentenced forthwith. Tannin is not bitter at all, but oh, kosh, how it does pucker up things and harden your insides.

Tannin (tannic acid) is not so soluble in warm water as it is in boiling water.

Way back in 1871, Dr. W. H. Searles, Warsaw, Wisconsin, published in the Chicago Medical Examiner (April issue) his homely remedy for burns, reporting its successful use in the case of a child who had been terribly burned over the entire front of the body, arms and legs, by a kettle of hot water the child had upset upon itself. Dr. Searles prepared a large poultice of tea leaves, softening the leaves with hot water, and applied it while yet quite warm, upon cotton wool (I suggest that sterile gauze would be better) over the entire burned surface. All the most like magic the sufferings abated and, without the use of any other anodyne, the child soon fell into a quiet sleep. In a few hours I removed the application, and re-applied it where it was necessary. I found the parts discolored and apparently tanned. Tenderness nearly disappeared. . . . Little patient made a good recovery in about three weeks. Since then on several occasions I have had reason to recommend tea leaves, till now I have come to prefer it to all other remedies in the first stage of burns and scalds. . . .

I, (Old Doc Brady) suggest that the tea leaves be made into a poultice with boiling water, rather than just hot water.

Ordinary green tea is okay for such a poultice, but black tea contains more tannin and would probably be even better.

Is This Man's Or Woman's World?

By Caroline Chatfield

Recently a newspaper woman interviewed a movie star on the subject "Is this a man's or a woman's world?" When the glamorous one had said her say the interviewer pulled out an old paper on which were written words strangely at variance with those just jotted down. Two years before the struggling young actress had told this same interviewer that it was a man's world. Now she had exercised the female's inalienable right to change her mind.

She had two good reasons: First she herself had arrived at the pinnacle of success and second she had married a husband who had also arrived. Naturally she had concluded that this was neither a man's nor a woman's world but a place of fifty-fifty opportunity where anybody could arrive if he or she had the goods.

Of course the gal that's got her man isn't much concerned with the subject. What, if it is a man's world she's got her man in the middle of that. She's sitting pretty either way. As for the majority of men they've had it their way so long, they take it for granted they always will. Even though some of their tail feathers have been clipped, they still feel somewhat Chanticleerish, still hop on the fence and crow to bring the sun up.

The men have reasons for crowing, too. To begin with it is their exclusive right to find the girl, do the courting and get settled for life. They are physically stronger and in addition to the edge this gives them they aren't subject to all the petty ailments that women are heir to. Largely speaking they control the family purse strings which means they may call the turns for women and children.

They aren't bound by a thousand and one conventions that hedge women in. They can stand on the street corners and watch the parade go by without making themselves conspicuous. They can wear old clothes indefinitely without appearing hopelessly out of fashion. They can step out of the most humble surroundings and climb right up to the top without having anybody raise an eyebrow and dub them climbers. Though they may murder the King's English they can converse with royalty and though they eat like pigs they can dine with Kings.

Suppose it is a man's world! A woman has two chances to make good in it. The best chance is to attach a man, go along with him and work through him to get where she wants to be. The second is to arrive under her own steam in the world of business, profession, art or science. Once upon a time the men enjoyed the feast and the women took the leftovers. Today it's first come first served and there are a lot of females finding their way to fame and fortune under their own steam.

Playful Kittens

By Alice Brooks

PATTERN 6273.

These kittens play as charmingly on a pillow or scarf as on a tea cloth or towel—and they're just cooing you to embrace them in easy cross stitch. Other simple stitches complete the motifs. Do the kittens in natural colors—the posies and butterflies in bright floss. Pattern 6273 contains a transfer pattern of 11 motifs ranging in size from 1 1/2 by 2 1/2 inches to 7 1/4 by 10 inches; color schemes; illustrations of stitches; materials needed.

To obtain this pattern send ten cents in coin to Household Arts Department, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and pattern number.

Winter lays a light finger on the sands and beaches of southern California and no one is quicker to take advantage of the bland, warm days than Rosemary Lane—of the famed Lane family and Warner lot. This shot was made on the desert at La Quinta a few days after shooting was completed on "Oklahoma Kid," in which she plays leading lady to James Cagney.

Photographs of Hollywood Stars Buried Beneath Theater in China

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 17. A photograph of Dorothy Lamour and her sarong has been buried beneath a theater in China.

I wonder what posterity will discover when the relics are discovered.

Another picture on Robert Taylor's schedule—a remake of "Billy the Kid," with Bob playing the Johnny Mack Brown part, and Wallace Beery repeating his earlier role. . . . Universal hopes to get Edward G. Robinson for the lead in "I Stole a Million," which is all about Roy Gardner, the mail bandit. . . . "Us Americans," by Irvin Cobb, is the next Bob Burns picture for Paramount.

When Nelson Eddy returns to Hollywood from his concert tour, he stars in "Balalaika," with Ilona Massey. The tale has a Russian revolution background, with Nelson as a young aristocrat and Ilona as a girl of the people. . . . Douglas Fairbanks Jr. is lucky to get the starring role in "Ruler of the Seas," to be produced by Frank Lloyd. . . . John Barrymore's ex-father-in-law, Maurice Costello, has a bit role in "It's a Wonderful World," through the courtesy of W. S. Van Dyke, who has a good memory for old-timers. . . . Paramount will shortly release in this country "Jamaica Inn," starring Charles Laughton. . . . Greer Garson, who received the picture cold shoulder during her recent sojourn in Hollywood, returns from her "Goodbye Mr. Chips" triumph in London to play the lead in "May Flavin" at Metro. Lucky for Greer that she got that Mr. Chips assignment, or we might never have known what an excellent actress she is.

When the play, "The American Way," is made into a movie, Fredric March will repeat his stage role. . . . Sir Cedric Hardwicke plays Mr. Brink—the character of Death—in "On Borrowed Time." . . . I hope David Niven is not doomed to play a succession of "his-best-friend" roles. Goldwyn has just cast him as the pal of Gary Cooper in "The Real Glory." The trouble with being the best friend of the hero of a Hollywood picture is that you never get the girl—the hero does—which is not exactly true to life. Exercise Is Preventive Of Middle-Age Spread

By Ida Jean Kain.

At 16 we think of 35 as ancient, but as we approach 35 we are inclined to look upon 45 as still quite young!

This sleight of mind is no trick at all if you do not feel your age, for then, in all probability, you do not look it either. Feeling young is largely a matter of sufficient bodily activity and it's exercise that prevents the most mercilessly aging thing that can happen to you—the middle-aged spread.

But it is the exceptional woman who does not look and feel settled as she grows older. As we begin to lead more sedate lives, the tendency is to give up all the sports and games that were popular in youth. You don't have a slim, lithe figure because you are "young," you have it because you use your nice strong muscles, especially those of the midsection.

When we give up tennis and badminton and skating and congregate to sit and play bridge or to knit or to hear people make speeches, our figures settle, and all the cleverness of the corsetiers can't disguise the fact that there is a difference in well being.

Once you realize that all this settling can be undone by a few minutes of daily exercise—no matter how busy you are—you will be aware of it, but there are thick, downy muscles running up and down the midsection to form a marvelous abdominal girdle. No matter how soft and padded with fat this girdle is, it can be put into condition and made firm and hard. Begin your reconditioning program with the following simple exercises:

Sit on the floor on the feet, legs tucked under and feet under the hips, so that the body forms a perfect right angle at the juncture of hips and trunk. Just sit there and pull up with all your trunk muscles, beginning with those of the lower abdomen. At first you will only be able to maintain this upward pull for a few seconds at a time, but with daily exercise there is a rapid increase in the power of these muscles. After a few weeks you will want to pull up all the time!

The next exercise is more strenuous and should be performed only once during the first few days. Lie on the back on the floor, arms stretched straight out at the sides, shoulder level, and bring the legs straight up in the air. Hold the legs together and try not to bend the knees as you circle the feet over to one side, around and over to the other side, and back, completing a circle.

Now for the muscles at the sides of the waist. Lie flat on the back on the floor with arms stretched straight down. Keep the shoulders on the floor as you twist at the waist and turn the hips so that the right leg is resting on the left. Slowly return to position and twist to the other side.

To keep looking young, "Streamline the Midsection" with the exercise leaflet of that name. Send today for your copy, enclosing a stamped returned envelope. Send request to Miss Kain, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Partner opens the bidding with a game-forcing two-suit demand in hearts. What is your response with the following hands:

(1) S-2 D-Q 9 7 H-Q 10 7 4 2 C-Q 3 2

Your answer: _____

(2) S-8 D-Q 9 7 3 H-Q 10 7 4 2 C-Q 3 2

Your answer: _____

(3) S-K 8 D-Q 6 3 H-Q 10 7 4 2 C-8 7 2

Your answer: _____

(4) S-A 6 2 D-J 9 8 H-Q 10 7 C-K 10 7 4

Your answer: _____

(5) S-6 D-A Q J 6 3 2 H-Q 10 7 4 C-8 7

Your answer: _____

NO SINGLETON.

(1) A double jump to four hearts promising five trumps or at least four headed by the Queen, no singleton, no honor higher than a queen. The jump warns two-bidder responder's hand is definitely limited in high-card strength.

RUFFING STRENGTH.

(2) Two notrump because of the singleton spade two notrump is the correct response rather than a double jump. A raise to three hearts would guarantee one plus honor-tricks. Bid a strong raise in hearts on the next round. The singleton offers good ruffing possibilities.

POSITIVE RESPONSE.

(3) Three hearts. The hand has all the requirements for a positive raise as indicated by good trump support and one honor-trick plus.

SHOWS STRENGTH.

(4) Three notrump is the first response, showing the honor-tricks. The hand contains two honor-tricks plus, showing a strong raise in hearts on the next round. The singleton offers good ruffing possibilities.

SUIT TAKEOUT.

(5) Three diamonds. Holding 11-12 honor-tricks and a good bid-able suit the suit should be named first, even holding support for partner's two-suit bid. You may raise partner's heart bid on the next round.

2 COUNTY EMPLOYEES RETIRED BY BOARD

Commission Also Votes To
'Supervise' Illnesses of Fulton Workers.

Retirement on pension of two veteran Fulton county employees—one a former chief of county police—and a decision of county commissioners to "supervise" illnesses of employees yesterday featured a special commission session.

Captain A. Q. Turner, who served as one of the first police chiefs of Fulton county and who recently has been in charge of the county parking lot in the rear of the courthouse, and Miss Mary E. Jett, attaché in the office of the clerk of the commission, were those retired on pensions of $50 a month each.

Commissioners praised both for their services to the county. Ten others previously have been placed on pension rolls and commission members asserted others are to follow.

In line with its announced economy policy, commissioners do not plan to fill any places of those retired "except where it is absolutely mandatory."

Because of complaints that many Fulton employees are "using sick leaves as an excuse to lay off from work," commissioners yesterday were instructed to notify Commission Clerk Frank Flinn when a person is ill. When one returns to work, he must present a doctor's certificate showing the reason for his illness, and the commission will determine whether it was a bona fide illness under the new ruling made yesterday.

Another commission meeting will be held early next week to revise the budget to absorb additional costs of the new Fulton county superior court judgeship and to trim expenditures, it was announced.

DANGERS OF CANAL TOLD COMMITTEE

Floridan Warns U. S. State
Will Not Be Responsible for Damages.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—(P) Representative Peterson, Democrat, Florida, warned the house rivers and harbors committee today the federal government would be expected to pay the bill if property damage resulted from the Florida ship canal.

He spoke at the final session of the committee's hearing on the $200,000,000 waterway, for which the administration is seeking congressional authorization. He declared his central Florida district believed it dangerous and useless.

He said the Florida constitution prohibited the state's taking the responsibility for paying off any damage that might result from the excavations. Nor, he said, could the canal district assume the burden.

The Floridan said the geological survey had warned the excavations might injure the state's supply of fresh water, and said there was nothing to indicate any change in this attitude.

He said shippers, carriers and others would urge the canal if there were any basis for the belief that it would result in cheaper transportation.

A. for its national defense features, Peterson emphasized that only retired officers of the army and navy had appeared in behalf of the canal.

TALMADGE CLEARED OF TRAFFIC CHARGE

Fog Obscured 'Stop' Sign,
He Says; Proves It Wasn't Legal.

Former Governor Eugene Talmadge was cleared of charges of operating an automobile without a driver's license and running past a "stop" sign by Judge A. W. Callaway in recorder's court yesterday morning.

He was arrested February 21 by Radio Patrolmen F. A. Rhodes and J. C. Varnum on charges of passing a "stop" sign at Piedmont and Auburn avenues.

The former executive explained to the satisfaction of the court that, while he did not have his driver's permit on his person, it was contained among the luggage in his automobile. Regarding the sign, Talmadge admitted he had failed to stop, but told Recorder Callaway that he had not seen the sign because the morning was foggy. In addition he produced a certified copy of a city ordinance to prove that the ordinance making the sign legal had not been signed by the mayor until the afternoon of the day on which he was arrested, although the sign had been already erected.

MRS. FOOTE PAID
FINAL TRIBUTE

Funeral Services Conducted for Church Leader.

Funeral services for Mrs. Laura M. Foote, 70, of 60 Montgomery Ferry drive, widely known Atlanta churchwoman who died Wednesday at a private hospital, were conducted yesterday at Spring Hill.

Dr. Lester Rumble officiated and burial was in West View cemetery under direction of H. M. Patterson and Son.

A native of Marietta, Ga., Mrs. Foote had made her home here for 60 years and was the widow of W. O. Foote, founder and former head of Foote & Davies. She was long an active member of the St. Mark Methodist church, the Alonzo Richardson Bible Class and the Scottish Rite Sewing Club.

TARZAN AND THE FIRES OF TOHR No. 18

D'Arnot shouted in desperation, "We can't make it, Tarzan. Those devils run like anoles!" "We'll have to fight!" O'Rourke cried bravely. The ape-man saw too that their effort to reach the boat was futile. "Halt!" he commanded. "Gather around Janette."

A circle formed quickly around the girl. Each of the little band had firearms except Tarzan. He trusted to his faithful knife. "Here they come. Let 'em have it!" shouted Terry. A sharp volley resounded through the forest. Three of the yellow men fell.

But the others came on, shrieking and bellowing. Rifles cracked. Revolvers barked. The yellow horde swept on, and quickly encircled the desperate band. One huge savage charged Tarzan. The ape-man leaped aside, then swung in close and drove his knife deep.

With a weird death-scream, the yellow bulk lurched forward, fell upon the jungle floor, and bore him to the ground by sheer weight. Before the ape-man could toss the giant body aside, a swarm of yellow men pounced savagely upon him and pinned him to the ground!

DAIRYMAN ACCUSED IN AUTO PYRE DEATH

Negro, at Preliminary Hearing,
Says Employer Killed Officer.

OPELIKA, Ala., March 17.—(P) Daniel Lee Major, negro dairy farmer, testified at a preliminary hearing today that W. Herbert Bush, Let county dairyman, and his employer, killed Lieutenant William D. Davis, whose charred body was found in a burned automobile February 12.

Bush was summoned before Justice of the Peace E. A. Burke for the hearing on a charge of murder in Lieutenant Davis' death. Major also is charged with murder. The negro testified he came home about 2:30 o'clock in the morning and that about 10 minutes later Davis' body was found in the premises, turned around, went out and stopped in a ditch with the motor racing and the lights burning.

Brought a Hatchet.

He said Bush came out of the house and told him to put a hatchet in the car, that he (Bush) was "tired of people coming up" there and waking him up. Major said they then went to the automobile and Bush asked Davis what he was doing up there. He said Davis made no reply.

"Mr. Bush then grabbed Mr. Davis by the collar," Major testified, "pulled him out of the car and hit him in the back of the head with the hatchet. Mr. Davis slumped over Mr. Bush's knee."

The negro said Bush told him to get in the car and help pull the body back into the automobile. He said Bush then took a flashlight and looked over himself, but didn't see any blood on him.

Bush then went back to Mr. Davis' house, got some used motor oil, went back and poured it on the car and set it on fire," testified Major. "Mr. Bush then went back home and began making preparations for running his dairy."

Burned Body Found.

About 7 o'clock the next morning, the negro said, Bush and two men who had been working at the dairy—Willard and Paul Lloyd—went back to the car and found the charred body.

On cross-examination, Major said that when he was arrested, and that after being "bitten by officers," he told them Rufus Kendrick, a negro with whom he had been out with the night before, killed Davis. He said Kendrick told him he would kill him if he said anything about it.

Major reiterated, however, that Bush and not Kendrick killed Davis.

The prosecution was being conducted by Charles S. Moon, of Lafayette, Ala., district solicitor.

DASHIELL SERVICES SET FOR TOMORROW

Rites Will Be Conducted for Retired Officer at St. Luke's.

Funeral services for Brigadier General William R. Dashiell, widely known retired army officer and a resident of Atlanta for nearly 15 years, who died Thursday night at a private hospital, will be conducted at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at St. Luke's Episcopal church.

The Rev. John Moore Walker will officiate and the body will be sent to the National cemetery, Arlington, Va. for burial under the direction of H. M. Patterson & Son. Pallbearers will be William A. Smith, Judge Shepherd Bryan, D. B. Osborne, L. M. DeSaussure, Colonel C. A. Bach, J. M. Marshall Jr., Colonel R. C. Williams and General William R. Sample.

A native of Mecklenburg county, Virginia, General Dashiell graduated from West Point in 1888 and saw active service in the last of the Indian uprisings in the Dakotas, the Spanish-American War and the World War.

He was in charge of the military departments of the Atlanta and Fulton county schools from 1925 to 1930 and was in charge of the Fulton county military departments from 1930 until his retirement in 1932. He was an active member of St. Luke's church and at one time served as senior warden.

Brought a Hatchet.

He said Bush came out of the house and told him to put a hatchet in the car, that he (Bush) was "tired of people coming up" there and waking him up. Major said they then went to the automobile and Bush asked Davis what he was doing up there. He said Davis made no reply.
